

Table of Contents

A Few Words from the Publisher . . . . .	9
Introduction . . . . .	11
Chapter I: Quest for Liberty and Democracy . . . . .	15
How Regimes Collapse and How to Go Back to Liberty? . . . . .	17
Global Governance and its European Variant . . . . .	25
We Are Not on the Winning Side . . . . .	30
Hayek and My Life . . . . .	41
Smithian Inspirations and Their Difficult Fate in Central Europe . . . . .	49
Conservative Ideas: Renewal or Return? . . . . .	59
Is There a Universal Quest for Liberty? . . . . .	66
The Irreplaceable and Unsubstitutable Importance of Freedom . . . . .	73
Let's Return to Hayek's Ideas . . . . .	82
Careless Opening Up of Countries Leads either to Anarchy or to Global Governance: Lessons of the European Experience . . . . .	88
Chapter II: EU without Illusions . . . . .	99
The European Problems As Seen from Prague . . . . .	100
Politics Must Stop Dictating Economics in Europe . . . . .	108
The Lasting Crisis in Europe and the Continuing Growth in Asia: Why Is It So? . . . . .	115
Europe Has Not Yet Made the Necessary Change . . . . .	118

Democrats of Europe, Wake Up! . . . . .	124
No Illusions about the EU . . . . .	128
Europe at the Crossroad . . . . .	135
Chapter III: Transition in Retrospect . . . . .	143
The Political Economy of Introducing Free Markets . . . . .	144
The Post-communist Transition Should Not Be Misinterpreted . . . . .	151
Fundamental Systemic Change Is not an Exercise in Applied Economics . . . . .	156
Transition in Perspective . . . . .	163
Yegor Gaidar and the Economics of Transformation . . . . .	168
Polish Transformation as Seen by a Friendly Neighbour . . . . .	177
Chapter IV: Global Warming Doctrine's Attack Continues . . . . .	181
The Global Warming Doctrine is Not a Science: Notes for Cambridge . . . . .	182
Climate Change: The Dangerous Faith . . . . .	190
Global Warming Doctrine's Attack Continues . . . . .	198
The Manmade Contribution to Ongoing Global Warming Is Not a Planetary Emergency . . . . .	203
Chapter V: Reflections on the Current World . . . . .	213
Gary Becker As Seen from Prague . . . . .	214
Economic Growth Is the Best Promoter of Social and Environmental Goals . . . . .	220
Europe, Its Problems, and Russia in the 21st Century . . . . .	223
Eastern Europe between Stagnation in the West and Rapid Growth in the East . . . . .	230

Europe and America: Our Common Crisis . . . . .	236
Czech Republic and Poland: Neighbours! And Friends! . . . .	243
Is the Title “Sustainable Development in Periods of Instability” a Correct One? . . . . .	251
Swiss Referendum About Immigration: As Seen from Prague . . . . .	257
The Carefully Organized Separation of Czechoslovakia as an Example How to Peacefully Solve a Nation State Problem . . . . .	260
Let’s Start a Real Ukrainian Debate . . . . .	267
Can Switzerland Remain Switzerland in a Registered Partnership with the EU? . . . . .	281