

Bibliography

This bibliography is divided into two parts. The first is brief and can be regarded as identifying some essential reading materials, while the second is a longer listing which should serve as a more general reference resource.

Section 1

The books listed in this section have very greatly influenced my thinking over the past 12 years, since the publication in 1996 of The Future of Law. I regard them as required reading for anyone who is taking the future seriously.

Benkler, Y, The Wealth of Networks (New Haven: Yale University Press, 2006).

Christensen, C, The Innovator's Dilemma (Boston: Harvard Business School Press, 1997).

Friedman, TL, The World is Flat (London: Penguin, updated and expanded edn, 2006).

Katsh, E and Rifkin, J, Online Dispute Resolution (San Francisco: Jossey-Bass, 2001).

Kurzweil, R, The Singularity is Near (New York: Viking, 2005).

Levy, F and Murnane, RJ, The New Division of Labour (New York: Russell Sage Foundation, 2004).

Pink, D, A Whole New Mind (London: Cyan, 2005).

Shapiro, C and Varian, H, Information Rules (Boston: Harvard Business School Press, 1999).

Section 2

This section of the bibliography presents the full references for all books, reports, and articles referred to in the body of the text that are published conventionally in print or on the Web.
