

Contents

List of figures and tables	ix
Notes on the contributors	x
List of abbreviations	xiv
Introduction	xv

1 Developing integrative practice Robert Adams, Lena Dominelli and Malcolm Payne	1
What does 'integrative' mean to us?	1
How does research contribute to practice?	3
What do we mean by complexity?	5
Complexity thinking	6
Thoughtfulness in practice	8
How do social workers engage with management and leadership?	11

PART 1 Uncertainty and complexity in practice 13

Introduction	14
2 Encountering complexity and uncertainty Robert Adams	15
Starting points	15
Understanding what we mean by uncertainty	16
Understanding what we mean by complexity	18
Understanding boundaries	21
Delving further into the ambiguities of boundaries	24
3 Persistent oppressions: the example of domestic violence Audrey Mullender	33
The persistence of domestic violence	34
The failure to offer women effective help	35
Rediscovering social work skills: a way forward?	36
4 Risk and protection Vivienne E. Cree and Susan Wallace	42
Understanding risk and protection	42
Risk, protection and the law	44
Risk, protection and rights	46
Risk, protection and responsibilities	46
Risk, protection and values	49
Risk assessment	51
Risk management	53
Checklist for good practice	54
5 Troubled and in trouble: young people, truancy and offending Angela Grier and Terry Thomas	57
From 'welfare' to 'minimalism' to 'interventionism'	58
Young people who engage in antisocial behaviour	60

	Young people who do not go to school	62
	Young people who commit sexual offences	63
	Young people who persistently commit offences	65
6	Sexuality Stephen Hicks	70
	Introduction	70
	A 'discourse' approach to sexuality and social work	71
	The 1970s	72
	The 1980s	75
	The 1990s	78
	The 2000s	80
7	Frailty and dignity in old age Helen Gorman	85
	Frailty and dignity: an example from practice	87
	Communication	88
	The final scenario ...	92
	Care management and early intervention: systems and individuals	93
	Older people as carers	94
	Coordination and collaboration between agencies, professionals and service users	94
	Social workers need particular skills	95
	Reconsidering frailty and dignity: the human rights agenda	95
8	Risk, rights and anti-discrimination work in mental health Liz Sayce	99
	The risk to others: care staff, service users, the wider public – and cats	99
	Discussion: is risk approached fairly?	101
	What can be done to challenge discriminatory approaches to risk?	106
	Challenging the stereotypes that underpin unfair risk-thinking in mental health	108
	Implications for social workers and other mental health professionals	110
9	Social work with asylum seekers and others subject to immigration control Debra Hayes	114
	A history of discrimination	115
	Controlling welfare	117
	Postwar welfare	118
	Entering the asylum	120
	Implications for social work	122
10	Legal and illicit drug use Fiona Measham and Ian Paylor	127
	Contextual factors	127
	Research and policy	130
	Agency responses and practice issues	133

PART 2 Management, leadership and change 141

	Introduction	142
11	Management and managerialism Malcolm Payne	143
	Introducing management and managerialism	143
	The meaning of management	146
	Ideas about management	148
	Service management and the people served	152
	Organisational structure and culture	153
	Work, management and social divisions	155
12	Managing the workload Joan Orme	158
	(Mis)managing the workload?	158
	Workload, values and practice	160
	Organisational responsibilities	160
	Individual responsibilities	163

Management responsibilities	164
Critical practice	165
13 Partnership working Mark Lymbery and Andy Millward	167
Partnership working: the political context	168
Dimensions of professionalism	170
Making it work: social work practice in the interprofessional setting	173
14 Strategic planning and leadership Malcolm Payne	179
What is strategy?	179
Ideas about strategy	182
What is leadership?	183
Continuity and change	184
Areas of strategic thinking	185
15 Supervision and being supervised Julia Phillipson	188
Uprooting the roots of supervision	189
Experiencing supervision	190
Using provocations to question how supervision might be different	192
Regrowing supervision for critical social work	193
16 Managing risk and decision-making Terence O'Sullivan	196
What is meant by risk?	197
What are the societal contexts of the concern with 'risk'?	198
How are risks to be assessed?	199
The use of risk assessment instruments	200
Is a critical risk assessment possible?	200
Limitations of evidence-based practice	201
What approach to risk management is to be taken?	202
17 Managing finances Jill Manthorpe and Greta Bradley	204
Poor clients	204
Turning the screw	207
More than a sticking plaster	208
Developing skills	209
Cash not care?	209
Cash and capacity	211
18 Quality assurance Robert Adams	213
Quality is a matter of debate and controversy	213
Policy and legal context	213
Concepts of quality and quality assurance	217
Methods of assuring quality	217
Four main approaches to quality assurance	220
Implications for critical practice	226
19 Change and continuity in social work organisations Glenys Jones	228
Introduction: social work in the context of change	228
Change in the UK context	229
Constancy throughout change	230
Organisational links	231

PART 3 Researching social work

239

Introduction	240
20 Social work research: contested knowledge for practice Lena Dominelli	241
What is social research?	244

	The distinctiveness of social work research	248
	Becoming more research literate and responding to controversies in social work research	251
	Power and subjectivity in the processes of social work research	253
21	Planning research and evaluation projects in social work Sarah Banks and Di Barnes	257
	The nature of research and evaluation	258
	Practitioner research	258
	Applied, action, participatory and emancipatory research	259
	Issues of philosophy and values	261
	Clarifying stakeholder expectations	263
	Negotiating ethical issues	265
22	Doing literature searches and reviews Malcolm Payne	271
	Literature searches and reviews: their importance	271
	Literature reviews in social work education	272
	Search methods	273
	The search process	277
	The review process	278
23	Experiencing research as a practitioner Carol Lewis	284
	Meeting the methodological challenges in social work research	286
	Experiencing and practising research	287
	The concept of transformation	291
	Critical reflection and transformation	292
24	Evaluating practice Nick Frost	296
	Evaluation as a form of practice	296
	Issues, tensions and controversies	297
	A creative evaluation practice?	301
	Examples of methods of evaluation in practice	303
	Utilising and integrating evaluative evidence: the RIPE model	305
25	Critical social work research Beth Humphries	308
	Introduction	308
	Social research as a moral and political activity	310
	Critical social research	311
	From margin to centre	312
	Subjugated knowledges	312
	Talking back	314
	Reframing knowledge	316
26	Developing social work research Jackie Powell	321
	What is the purpose of social work research?	321
	Making use of research	322
	Trends in social work research	323
	Research as knowledge production	324
	Research as process	326
	Partnership working	328
	Concluding comment Robert Adams, Lena Dominelli and Malcolm Payne	331
	Integrating critical practice	331
	Continuing professional development	332
	Managing uncertainty, complexity and tensions	333
	Moral hope for practitioners	333
	Critical practice is transformational	334
	Bibliography	336
	Index	359