

Contents

Editors' Introduction: Theory and Craft in Narrative Inquiry Colette Daiute and Cynthia Lightfoot	vii
Part I: Literary Readings	1
1.1 The Role of Imagination in Narrative Construction Theodore R. Sarbin	5
1.2 Fantastic Self: A Study of Adolescents' Fictional Narratives, and Aesthetic Activity as Identity Work Cynthia Lightfoot	21
1.3 Cultural Modeling as a Frame for Narrative Analysis Carol D. Lee, Erica Rosenfeld, Ruby Mendenhall, Ama Rivers, and Brendesha Tynes	39
1.4 Data Are Everywhere: Narrative Criticism in the Literature of Experience Mark Freeman	63
Part II: Social-Relational Readings	83
2.1 Construction of the Cultural Self in Early Narratives Katherine Nelson	87
2.2 Creative Uses of Cultural Genres Colette Daiute	111
2.3 Positioning With Davie Hogan: Stories, Tellings, and Identities Michael Bamberg	135
2.4 Dilemmas of Storytelling and Identity Steven Stanley and Michael Billig	159

Part III: Readings Through the Forces of History	177
3.1 Narrating and Counternarrating Illegality as an Identity Jocelyn Solis	181
3.2 Transcendent Stories and Counternarratives in Holocaust SurvivorLife Histories: Searching for Meaning in Video-Testimony Archives Sarah K. Carney	201
3.3 Women of “The Greatest Generation”: Feeling on the Margin of Social History Abigail J. Stewart and Janet E. Malley	223
3.4 Culture, Continuity, and the Limits of Narrativity: A Comparison of the Self-Narratives of Native and Non-Native Youth Michael J. Chandler, Christopher E. Lalonde, and Ulrich Teucher	245
3.5 Once Upon a Time: A Narratologist’s Tale Mary Gergen	267
Index	287
About the Editors	295
About the Contributors	296