

Content

1. Introduction	9
2. Methodology	17
3. Historical assessment of the period conditions	25
3.2. Historical overview (outline)	30
3.2.1. Period from 1945 to 1948	30
3.2.2. Period from 1948 to 1959	35
3.2.3. Period from 1959 to 1969	48
4. On the evaluation of the source base	59
4.1. The Tempo magazine	59
4.2. The Hudebni rozhledy journal	60
5. The changes of “social awareness” in the examples of “semiotic fields”	63
5.1. Period from 1945 to 1948	63
5.1.1. Losses, sufferings, injustices	63
5.1.2. Field of guilt	66
5.1.3. The change of relationship towards foreign music (at the background of domestic certainties)	67
5.1.4. Democratisation of culture and its social guarantees	72
5.1.5. The question of avant-garde and progress	79
5.2. Period from 1948 to 1959	81
5.2.1. Imperfections, crisis, remedy	82
5.2.2. Popularity, socialist realism, traditions	97
5.2.3. (Finishing) the construction of socialism; satisfaction over a given state (origins of aesthetic liberalism); system is opening to the world	100
5.2.4. Education (as a problem)	110
5.2.5. The position of Czech music	114
5.2.6. Popular music	116
5.3. Period from 1959 to 1969	120
5.3.1. Crisis, criticality, resurgence	122
5.3.2. New music	127
5.3.3. Socialism continued	131
5.3.4. Competence – scientism of control	135

5.3.5. Liberalism	137
6. Problem spheres in light of key words.	139
6.1. Period from 1945 to 1948.	139
6.2. Period from 1948 to 1959.	159
6.3. Period from 1959 to 1969.	189
7. Conclusion	201
Sources and bibliography	207
Index	215