

CONTENTS

|   |             |
|---|-------------|
| FOREWORD   | vi   |
| LEE Jong-wook, Director-General, World Health Organization                  | vi          |
| SUPPORTING STATEMENTS  | viii |
| Olusegun OBASANJO, President, Federal Republic of Nigeria                   | viii        |
| Anbumani RAMADOSS, Minister of Health & Family Welfare, Government of India | x           |
| WANG Longde, Vice-Minister of Health, the People's Republic of China        | xii         |
| WHAT'S INSIDE  | xiv  |
| PART ONE – OVERVIEW  | 1    |
| PART TWO – THE URGENT NEED FOR ACTION                                | 32   |
| Chapter 1 – Chronic diseases: causes and health impacts                     | 34          |
| What are chronic diseases?  | 35          |
| Chronic disease profiles  | 37          |
| The causes of chronic diseases  | 48          |
| Risk factor projections   | 54          |
| Projections of future deaths  | 57          |
| A vision for the future: reducing deaths and improving lives                | 58          |
| Chapter 2 – Chronic diseases and poverty                                    | 61          |
| From poverty to chronic diseases  | 62          |
| From chronic diseases to poverty  | 66          |
| Chronic diseases and the Millennium Development Goals                       | 70          |
| Chapter 3 – The economic impact of chronic diseases                         | 74          |
| Measuring the costs of chronic diseases                                     | 75          |
| Cost of illness studies   | 75          |
| Macroeconomic consequences of chronic diseases                              | 77          |
| The full costs of chronic diseases for countries                            | 82          |
| Economic impact of achieving the global goal in countries                   | 83          |

PART THREE – WHAT WORKS: THE EVIDENCE FOR ACTION 88

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Chapter 1 – A strategy to achieve rapid results | 90  |
| Chapter 2 – Review of effective interventions   | 96  |
| Laws and regulations                            | 96  |
| Tax and price interventions                     | 98  |
| Improving the built environment                 | 99  |
| Advocacy  | 99  |
| Community-based interventions                   | 100 |
| School-based interventions                      | 100 |
| Workplace interventions                         | 102 |
| Screening                                       | 103 |
| Clinical prevention                             | 104 |
| Disease management                              | 109 |
| Rehabilitation                                  | 112 |
| Palliative care                                 | 113 |

PART FOUR – TAKING ACTION: ESSENTIAL STEPS FOR SUCCESS 120

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Chapter 1 – Providing a unifying framework – the role of government           | 122 |
| Introduction to the stepwise framework  | 124 |
| Planning step 1 – Estimate population need and advocate for action            | 126 |
| Planning step 2 – Formulate and adopt policy                                  | 128 |
| Planning step 3 – Identify policy implementation steps                        | 132 |
| Chapter 2 – The private sector, civil society and international organizations | 148 |
| Partnerships  | 149 |
| Networks  | 150 |
| The private sector  | 151 |
| Civil society   | 158 |
| International organizations   | 159 |

ANNEXES 162

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Annex 1 – Methods for projections of mortality and burden of disease to 2015 | 163 |
| Annex 2 – WHO regions  | 166 |
| Annex 3 – World Bank income groupings  | 168 |
| Annex 4 – Economic analysis methods  | 170 |
| Annex 5 – The WHO-CHOICE method  | 172 |

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS 173

INDEX 178