
Content

List of Abbreviations	9
Introduction: Democratization, Collective Identity Formation, and the EU Enlargement	11
Hans-Jörg Trenz, Zdenka Mansfeldová, Petra Guasti, and Jessie Hronešová
1. European studies and collective identities	11
2. Modelling collective identity and European democracy	13
3. Collective identities and the EU enlargement	15
4. Outline of the volume	17
4.1. Applying Q Methodology to the study of identities	18
4.2. Theoretical and methodological approaches to assessing emerging identities	20
References	23
1. Q-Methodology, Common Identity Patterns, and Models of Democracy in Europe	27
David Skully
1. Introduction	27
2. Eliciting identity patterns: statements, subjects, sorts and interviews ...	29
2.1. Statements	29
2.2. Subjects	30
2.3. Sorts	30
2.4. Interviews	31
3. Data analysis	31
4. Interpretation of factors and the construction of factor narratives	33
5. Comparative analysis and agreement with models of democracy	36
5.1. Quantitative comparative analysis of factors	36
5.2. Quantitative measurement of agreement with models of democracy	36
5.3. The inferential limits of Q-methodology analysis	38
References	39
2. Collective Identity Patterns among Hungarian University Students	41
Erika Kurucz
1. Introduction	41
2. Hungarian cultural values and traditional identities	43
3. Identification patterns of Hungarian students	46

3.1. The 'liberal-democratic' identity pattern (Factor I)	47
3.2. The 'macho-nationalistic' identity pattern (Factor II)	49
3.3. The utilitarian-instrumental European identity pattern (Factor III)	50
3.4. The 'Hestia' nationalistic identity pattern (Factor IV)	51
3.5. Comparative analysis and factor structure	52
4. Summary of findings	54
5. Conclusion	55
References	56
3. Universalist, Traditionalist, Pragmatic, Instrumental: Narratives of Europe among Young Poles	59
Olga Brzezińska, Beata Czajkowska, David Skully
1. Introduction	59
2. Four narratives of Europe	60
2.1. Universalists (Factor 1)	61
2.2. Traditionalists (Factor 2)	62
2.3. Pragmatists (Factor 3)	64
2.4. Instrumentalists (Factor 4)	65
3. Polish identity patterns and models of democracy	67
4. Polish Factor Structure	72
5. Conclusion	74
References	76
4. Structured Diversity: Patterns of European Collective Identities in Comparative Perspective	77
Rosemarie Sackmann
1. Introduction	77
2. Theoretical perspective on collective identities	77
3. Research on collective European identities	78
4. Comparative research	80
5. Empirical questions and research design	82
6. Research findings	83
6.1. Similarities in the cross-country analysis	83
6.2. Theoretical and empirical concepts	86
6.3. Differences in the cross-country analysis	87
6.4. Specificities in the case studies	88
6.5. Differences within similarities	90
7. Conclusion	92
References	93

5. Dimensions of European Identification among Elites: An Exploratory Study within the Enlarged EU	95
Aleksandra Sojka and Rafael Vázquez García
1. Introduction	95
2. Elites and European identification	97
3. Empirical results	100
3.1. Attachment to Europe	101
3.2. European and national identity: inclusive and exclusive	103
3.3. Dimensions of European identification within the enlarged European Union	106
3.4. Europe's others: perception of threats	109
4. Concluding remarks	110
References	112
6. Feeling European: Elites versus Masses?	115
Tomáš Lacina
1. Introduction	115
2. Perspectives of identity	116
3. Elite identity	118
4. Hypotheses	119
5. Research methods	120
6. Empirical Results	121
7. Conclusion	126
References	127
7. 'Axiological Europeanization' and Identity Change: the Case of Polish Elections to the European Parliament in 2009	129
Jacek H. Kołodziej
1. Constitutional rationale for EU axiological persuasion	129
2. 'European values' – the nexus of Europeanization	133
3. Axiological Europeanization at the level of political parties	135
4. Identity transformation as the potential effect of axiological Europeanization	141
5. Conclusion	144
References	146

8. Not Just a Nation Set in Stone: The Undercurrents Making the National Structure More Porous	149
Marcin Galent and Paweł Kubicki
1. Introduction	149
2. Methodology	150
3. 'Urbanogentsia'	152
4. City as a social field	154
5. Patterns of identity change	154
5.1. The case of Cracow: a Polish city in Central Europe	155
5.2. The case of Wrocław: a Central European city in Poland	157
5.3. The case of Szczecin: a city as a 'carte blanche'	161
6. Conclusions	164
References	165
9. Conclusions: Transformation of Collective Identities in Europe and its Influence on Democracy	167
Magdalena Góra and Zdzisław Mach
1. Introduction	167
2. The nature of identity constructions in Europe and EU enlargement ..	168
3. Democratic polity models and identity	170
4. Political identity in the European Union	175
4.1. Torn between the national and the European	176
4.2. Popular reading of the European project	179
5. Transforming collective identities in Europe	181
References	182
About the authors	185
Index	189
Summary	193