

Table of Contents

Introduction.....	1
On Theory and Methodology.....	13
Overview of the Book.....	18
Chapter One: From Bilateralism to Multilateralism: A Conceptualization of the Czech Republic's Foreign Policy Making vis-à-vis Russia and the Larger Post-Soviet Space.....	21
Introduction: Czech(oslovak) Foreign Policy as a Continuous Struggle of Competing Ideas.....	21
Engagement vs. Estrangement: Establishing Relations with Russia and the Larger Post-Soviet Space in 1989–1999.....	31
Aggravation vs. Normalization: Maintaining Relations with Russia and the Larger Post-Soviet Space in 2000–2004.....	38
All Harmonious?: Maintaining Relations with Russia and the Larger Post-Soviet Space in the Post-2004 Period.....	44
Conclusion.....	48
Chapter Two: Theorizing the European Union's Foreign Policy Making: A Two-Level Game.....	51
Introduction: The Complexity of Theorizing EU Foreign Policy Making.....	51
Providing a Set of Analytical Tools I: Liberal Intergovernmentalism.....	55
Liberal Intergovernmentalism and EU Foreign Policy Making.....	62
Operationalizing Liberal Intergovernmentalism for the Purpose of the Present Study.....	69
Providing a Set of Analytical Tools II: Social Constructivism.....	71
Social Constructivism and EU Foreign Policy Making.....	78
Operationalizing Social Constructivism for the Purpose of the Present Study.....	85
Case Study Selection and Remarks on Methodology.....	86
Conclusion.....	94

Chapter Three: From a Forgotten Region to Prague's Protégé: the European Union's Eastern Neighborhood.....	95
Introduction: The European Union and Its Eastern Neighborhood Prior to 2004.....	95
Czech Domestic Preference Formation on Reforming the European Neighbourhood Policy.....	105
Two Sides of the Same Coin: Czech National Preference vs. Czech Policy Strategies	114
Leaving the Domestic Level: Uploading the National Preference to the European Union Level.....	120
Arriving at the European Union Level: Negotiating the European Partnership.....	129
Conclusion.....	139
 Chapter Four: The Czech Republic's Energy Security: Part of a Greater EU Puzzle	143
Introduction: The European Union's External Energy Policy Prior to 2004.....	143
Czech Domestic Preference Formation on Reducing the European Union's Energy Dependence on Russia	151
Two Sides of the Same Coin: Czech National Preference vs. Czech Policy Strategies	161
Leaving the Domestic Level: Uploading the National Preference to the European Union Level.....	167
Arriving at the European Union Level: Negotiating a New Approach to the European Union's Energy Security.....	178
Conclusion.....	196
 Chapter Five: Emphasizing Democracy Promotion: The Czech Republic's Niche in the European Union's Foreign Policy	201
Introduction: The European Union's External Human Rights and Democratization Policy Prior to 2004	201
Czech Domestic Preference Formation to Provide the EU's Foreign Policy with a New Democratization Dimension.....	212
Two Sides of the Same Coin: Czech National Preference vs. Czech Policy Strategies	221
Leaving the Domestic Level: Uploading the National Preference to the European Union	227

Arriving at the European Union Level: Negotiating a Reinvigorated European Union Approach to External Democracy Promotion	236
Conclusion.....	246
Conclusion	251
Master Variable No. One: The Quality of the National Preference	255
Master Variable No. Two: The Ability to Position Oneself as a Norm Entrepreneur.....	257
Master Variable No. Three: The Character of Interstate Negotiations and One's Negotiation Skills.....	259
Supportive Variables	261
Implications for Theory.....	264
Epilogue: Recent Developments.....	271
List of Interviewees	279
Bibliography	281