

Contents

1. Intimate partner violence as a public issue and its theoretical reflection (Jiří Buriánek, Simona Pikálková)	7
Research on intimate partner violence and the hypothesis of gender (a)symmetry	11
Defining family violence	14
Limitations of solutions involving criminal liability	17
Some theories in sociology explaining family violence	18
Feminist theories and masculinity	21
Intimate partner violence and gender	23
Transformations of the male role	26
Men as victims	29
2. Current study and its methodological background (Jiří Buriánek, Simona Pikálková)	31
Searching for the empirical evidence: From victimological surveys to IVAWS	31
The previous Czech experience	34
Objectives and methodology of the current research on "Intimate partner violence"	35
The sample	38
Some limitations in assessing trends	41
3. Physical violence in intimate partnership (Simona Pikálková)	45
Incidence and forms of physical violence	46
Profile of violent incident by intimate partner	49
Correlates of victimization in intimate partnership	57
Violence in intimate partnership by victim's characteristics	58
Partnership violence in connection with the aggressor's characteristics	63

4. Help-seeking behaviour among intimate partner violence victims (Viktorie Kolínská)	73
Formal sources of help	74
The role of the police in cases of domestic violence	74
Incidents reported to the police	76
Obstacles when contacting the police	77
Other options of formal help	80
Informal sources of help	82
Respondents who did not talk to anybody	84
Conclusion	85
5. Psychological violence in intimate relationships: a gender analysis (Zuzana Podaná)	87
Prevalence of psychological violence	89
Association between psychological and physical violence	95
Risk factors of psychological violence	95
Tolerance of psychological violence	100
Conclusion	103
6. Self-control and relationship configurations (Jiří Buriánek)	105
Relationship contexts and relationship values	105
Self-control	108
Relationship configurations	113
Forms of psychological abuse as a dependent variable and other aspects of social context	123
Predictors of violence	127
Configurations, violence and their reproduction	130
Conclusion	137
7. Stalking (Zuzana Podaná)	138
Stalking as a criminal offense	138
Stalking prevalence	140
Characteristics of stalking situations, victims, and offenders	142
Victim responses to stalking	146
Termination of stalking	150
Conclusion	152
8. Final discussion (Šimona Pikálková)	153
References	159