Contents

Acknowledgments x

Introduction: A Multicultural Approach to the Philosophy of Social Science 1

1 Do You Have To Be One To Know One? 9

1.1 Solipsism 9
1.2 Knowing and Sharing Experiences 12
1.3 Knowing and Being 17
1.4 Knowing and Meaning 24
1.5 Summing Up 27

2 Do We Need Others To Be Ourselves? 30

2.1 Atomism 30
2.2 "The" Self 32
2.3 Self and Others 39
2.4 Summing Up 47

3 Does Our Culture or Society Make Us What We Are? 50

3.1 Holism 50
3.2 Difference and Group Membership 53
3.3 Culture 55
3.4 Society 63
3.5 Determination and Agency 66
3.6 Summing Up 68

4 Do People in Different Cultures Live in Different Worlds? 72

4.1 Perspectivism 72

4.2 Relativism 76
4.3 The Argument From Translation 82
4.4 Summing Up 88

5 Must We Assume Others Are Rational? 92

5.1 Rationalism 92
5.2 Reasons and Causes 95
5.3 Reason-explanations and Irrational Actions 98
5.4 Rationality in Reason-explanations 103
5.5 The Principle of Humanity 105
5.6 Summing Up 110

6 Must We Comprehend Others in Their Own Terms? 112

6.1 Interpretivism 112
6.2 Causality 119
6.3 Competence 123
6.4 Critique 127
6.5 Summing Up 133

7 Is the Meaning of Others' Behavior What They Mean by It? 136

7.1 Intentionalism 136
7.2 Gadamerian Hermeneutics 141
7.3 Two Dimensions of Meaning 147
7.4 Summing Up 151

8 Is Our Understanding of Others Essentially Historical? 155

8.1 Nomologicalism 155
8.2 Laws in Social Science 159
8.3 The Inadequacy of Nomological Explanations 166
8.4 Historicism 169
8.5 The Inadequacy of Genetic Explanations 172
8.6 Summing Up 174

9 Do We Live Stories or Just Tell Them? 178

9.1 Narrative Realism 178
9.2 Narrative Constructivism 190
9.3 Narrativism 194
9.4 Summing Up 196

10 Can We Understand Others Objectively? 199

10.1 Objectivism 199
10.2 Fallibilism 204

10.3 Critical Intersubjectivity 212
10.4 Accountability 216
10.5 Summing Up 219

11 Conclusion: What's to be Learned from a Multicultural Philosophy of Social Science? 223

11.1 Beyond Pernicious Dualisms 223
11.2 Interactionism 228
11.3 Recruitability and Engagement 235
11.4 Summing Up 241

Bibliography 247

Index 260