

CONTENTS

Foreword	3
Introduction: The Social Dimension of Higher Education	7
Understanding the social dimension	7
The social dimension and the modernisation of higher education	8
Social dimension objectives of the Bologna process	9
Empirical analyses of the social dimension of higher education	9
What can policy do to address this empirical reality?	10
Funding of higher education and the link to the social dimension	11
Student contributions and the social dimension	12
The importance of the national context	13
The structure of and rationale for this study	13
Methodology	14
Chapter 1: Social Dimension Policies	15
1.1. Under-represented groups	15
1.2. Drop-out/non-completion of studies	22
1.3. Flexibility of higher education studies	23
Chapter 2: Developments in Higher Education	31
2.1. Trends in the participation in higher education	31
2.2. Levels of public funding and allocation priorities	35
2.3. Public funding of higher education institutions – a tool not used for the social dimension?	37
2.4. Funding formulas and the social dimension	39
2.5. Using performance-based mechanisms to foster social dimension objectives	40
2.6. The impact of the economic crisis	41
Chapter 3: Student Fees and Support	45
Introduction	45
3.1. Main approaches to student fees and support	45
3.2. Who pays fees?	48
3.3. Student financial support	50

3.4. Who receives student financial support?	51
3.5. Criteria for awarding grants	52
3.6. Criteria for awarding loans	53
3.7. Tax benefits and other support	54
3.8. Funding the student financial support system	55
Key Issues	59
National Student Fee and Support Systems, 2009/10	63
Guide to the National System Information Sheets	63
Calculating Purchasing power Standards, 2009	64
Table of Countries	65
References	99
Glossary	103
Table of Figures	109
Acknowledgements	111