

Bloomberg Businessweek

July 18 — July 24, 2016

Opening Remarks Brexit was a blow, but it won't turn back globalization	8
Bloomberg View A fighting chance for Afghanistan • End federal coal leases for good	10
Global Economics
Migrant Chinese workers find you can go home again	12
The Hague, the Philippines, and China exchange words over the South China Sea	14
Ukraine's central banker tries to tame the tycoons	15
Mexican President Peña Nieto's dreams of reform run up against low oil prices and angry teachers	16
Companies/Industries
Carmakers and tech companies battle for the dashboard—and the data inside it	18
China goes on a soccer buying spree	19
A successful digital revamp of Verizon could send Marni Walden to the corner office	21
Breakdown: How does augmented-reality app Pokémon Go make money? And who gets it?	21
Politics/Policy
Forget elephants and donkeys. America's political parties have always been chameleons	22
Technology
Live video puts Facebook back in the news business	29
Pro sports teams are drafting video gamers to attract younger fans	30
A cell phone locking device may have concertgoers holding up their cigarette lighters again	31
Drugmakers see a growing market in vaccines for expectant moms	32
Innovation: An air purifier that uses UV light to help you breathe easier	33
Markets/Finance
A boom in the bond market betrays investors' gloomy outlook	35
Lower endowment returns put pressure on university budgets	36
After the win for Leave, investors in U.K. property funds are forced to stay put	37
Miners dig for a better way to find a diamond in the rubble	38
Defined: If you think "cable" is where you get Game of Thrones , then you aren't a currency trader	40
Features
Crime Watch Inside Taser's plan to own the police body camera market	44
Great Scot! Post-Brexit, Nicola Sturgeon revives the fight for Scottish independence	52
Blowing Smoke How a Texas biodiesel plant made millions without making biodiesel	56
Etc.
Zak Pashak is peddling his Detroit-assembled bicycles to get the Motor City going again	63
Retail: There's no rest for hammock makers	66
Weddings: Fast fashion marries itself to bridal wear	67
Fashion: Mirrored sunglasses you'll take a shine to	68
The Critic: Netflix's doc on Tony Robbins fails to hold the self-help guru's feet to the fire	70
What I Wear to Work: P.S.—I Made This... founder Erica Domesek loves DIY fashion, but she'll don Hermès, too	71
How Did I Get Here? After college, future Genentech CEO Ian Clark opted for management over molecules	72

Cover Trail

How the cover gets made

Domestic Cover

1
"Cover is on Taser, which makes cop cams as well as stun guns. It'll likely see a huge jump in business because of recent events."

"This makes me feel conflicting things. I guess there's nothing wrong with the company making a profit. After all, it's making a device that protects people, right?"

"That's kind of an open question."

"One day I'll get a simple yes or no."

International Cover

1
"Will Brexit stop globalization?"

"No."

