

Articles

- 231–234 Prefatory Comments: Anthropological expertise and legal practice: about false dichotomies, the difficulties of handling objectivity and unique opportunities for the future of a discipline
Marie-Claire Foblets
- 235–252 Anthropology and the law: historicising the epistemological divide
Jonas Bens
- 253–271 The strategic use of epistemological positions in a power-laden arena: anthropological expertise in asylum cases in the UK
Markus Virgil Hoehne
- 272–292 Culture all around? Contextualising anthropological expertise in European courtroom settings
Larissa Vetters and Marie-Claire Foblets
- 293–311 Anthropology on trial: exploring the laws of anthropological expertise
Olaf Zenker
- 312–336 Mapping the public/private-law divide: a hybrid approach to corporate accountability
Ciara Hackett and Luke Moffett
- 337–360 Judging in lower courts: Conventional, procedural, therapeutic and feminist approaches
Rosemary Hunter, Sharyn Roach Anleu and Kathy Mack
- 361–376 Citizenship, identity and otherness: the orientalised of immigrants in the contemporary Spanish legal regime
Iker Barbero