

Content

Introduction	7
1. Research methodology and organisation	10
1.1 Definition of the problems.....	10
1.2 Analyses.....	11
1.3 Field survey	12
1.4 Synthesis.....	15
1.5 Interim verification of findings.....	16
2. Definition of self-employed persons	17
2.1 Characteristics of the socio-economic status and role of the self-employed in international and historical context.....	17
2.2 Substance, scale and structure of self-employment in the Czech Republic....	22
3. International comparison of the scale and structure of self-employment 322
3.1 Scale and structure of self-employment in EU countries.....	32
3.2 Common features of self-employment in the EU	43
3.3 Specifics of self-employment in the Czech Republic	44
4. Motivation for self-employment	47
5. Status of the self-employment sector in the Czech Republic	50
5.1 Basic position of the self-employment sector in the Czech economy	50
5.2 Conditions for independent micro-enterprise	55
5.3 Market position of enterprises of the self-employed.....	56
5.4 Qualifications and training, a precondition for the development of the self-employment sector	60
6. Relationship between the self-employment sector and public budgets ...	62
6.1 Taxation on corporations and the self-employed (unit tax costs).....	62
6.2 Specifics of Czech fiscal policy and self-employment	68
6.3 Labour costs of the self-employed.....	70
6.4 Social and health insurance.....	72
6.5 Support for small and medium-sized enterprise (self-employment)	73
7. False self-employment (“Švarc system”)	75
7.1 Definition of false self-employment	75
7.2 Public perception of “work under a trade licence”	84
7.3 Risks of false self-employment and solutions to these risks	88
8. Social situation of the self-employed in the Czech Republic	90
8.1 Incomes of self-employed persons	90
8.2 Working and living conditions of the self-employed – basic contexts.....	105
8.3 Self-employed persons’ and their households’ provision for the consequences of adverse events in life.....	110
9. Summary, conclusions	112
References	117