

Bloomberg Businessweek

December 26, 2016 — January 8, 2017

Cover Trail

How the cover gets made

Opening Remarks Silicon Valley's march into the future takes a detour at Trump Tower	6
Bloomberg View Upending the global order? Not good • Fannie and Freddie, meet Donald	8
Movers ▲ The Arctic, the Atlantic, the dollar ▼ Christine Lagarde, Swiss watch sales	11
Global Economics
The assassination in Ankara isn't likely to slow Russian ambitions in the Middle East	16
Can Polish democracy survive Polish nationalism?	17
China is trying to clean up its steel industry, starting with the zombies	18
Hyperinflation: In Venezuela, prices are doubling every 18 days	19
Companies/Industries
Enticed by a $25 billion jackpot, Japan prepares to roll the dice—on rolling dice	20
In Europe, Amazon hopes it can sashay right past fashion e-tailer Zalando	21
VIPKid pairs students in China with teachers in North America	22
Halal Quality Control takes Muslims from the dinner table to the makeup counter	24
Politics/Policy
On spending, Trump's biggest enemy may be Republicans in Congress	27
The president-elect is a fan of nuclear power, but it will fall to states to save it	28
ExxonMobil, foreign policy institute	30
The feds have punished Corinthian, and they're still punishing many of its defrauded student debtors	30
Technology
Life on Apple's Mac team, forgotten stepbrother of iPhone	33
Green entrepreneurs turn to Generate Capital for pay-as-you-go miracles	34
Who's the perfect ambassador to entice middle schoolers into the sciences? A robot, of course	35
Clinton, Podesta, 1 billion Yahoo! users—if you haven't yet been hacked, something's probably wrong with you	36
Innovation: The wheelchair is getting a reboot. Think Iron Man	37
Markets/Finance
It's a Goldman Sachs world after all	38
The VW scandal may reengineer Germany's legal landscape	39
Trump can check out of his Washington hotel any time he likes, but he can't profitably leave	40
It's been a bad year for endowments at the Little Ivies	41
Debrief
Jamie Dimon The head of JPMorgan Chase on Detroit's promise and Trump's opportunity	46
Good Business
You've Got Wolves! Seattle and ranchers meet cute in Washington state	54
Cleans Up Nice Kering's François-Henri Pinault pursues sustainable luxury	62
Bringing Up Robo Baby Realityworks had a brilliant idea to deter teen pregnancy. Whoops!	64
The Bias-Free Encyclopedia Can Wikipedia burst its "filter bubble"?	70
Worth Wearing Equality Now launches a clothing brand	74
Buy Now, Pay Later The pitfalls of ethical consumption	76
China vs. the Giant Clam Seven man-made islands and one endangered species later	78
It's the Thought That Counts How Trump's team gives	84

1

"This is our end-of-the-year Good Business Issue."

"I thought the end of this year would never come. I'm mentally, emotionally, and physically exhausted. Anxiety has become the norm for me. Day after day, reading headline after terrible headline—and I haven't had a good night's sleep in months. It's as if every ounce of positivity has been sucked out of me and into the black hole that is 2016. Does the Good Business Issue assure us that next year will be better?"

"No, but there is a story on wolf conservation."

"Wolves are so cute!"

