Bloomberg Businessweek

January 16 - January 22, 2017

How the cover gets made

0 "The story is on Netflix. They're using Brazil as a testing ground to expand globally." "I got this."

8

10

13

14 15

16 17

18 20 21

26

27

28

30

31

32

35

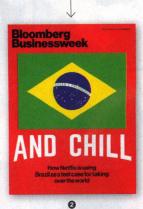

36

37

38

40

52

"What does this mean, exactly?"

"Netflix and chill' is a very popular phrase. It simply means coming home after a hard day's work, kicking off your shoes, sinking into your sofa, and indulging in some wholesome streaming entertainment, like Narcos. Since they're expanding in Brazil, this is just a fun little twist on that phrase. Good clean fun."

"So, that's all it means?"

"Yep."

(One hour later)

"I just looked it up on Urban Dictionary."

"Dammit."

Bloomberg View Republicans set their sights on abortion rights • Trump vs. Intelligence	Э
Movers ▲ "Siri, sing Happy Birthday " ▼ So long, Yahoo!
Global Economics
Inflation might possibly, theoretically be back. But don't bake a cake just yet
Divorcing Europe just got harder
Mexico hikes gas prices; pipeline-tapping thieves create a black market
The Mar-a-Lago men who are cooking up Trumponomics

Opening Remarks In a war on free trade, American workers will be the casualties

Companies/Industries

Take care, chicken, or Nanny Robot will throw you to the crocodiles
An Indian court weighs whether wider access to a TB drug will weaken its efficacy
What can slow down a fast-food joint? A labor shortage

Politics/Policy

Trump's voters want a wall at the border. His donors are building a pipeline beneath it	22
The drama surrounding Steven Mnuchin's Hollywood studio	23
A little think tank is laying out the new administration's energy policy	24
The president-elect freestyles on Russia	25

Technology

Employees or contractors? The gig economy hopes for a Handy solution	1 1 8
Storyful uses an army of bots to debunk fake news. The whiskey is for the copy editors	A. Angel
Defy Ventures is searching for the next startup star-behind bars

Markets/Finance

In India, cash is out—and Paytm is cashing in
South Korea's pension system stumbles into scandal
Fund investors are asking: What have you done for me lately?

Focus On/Davos

"Davos Man" should skip the slopes and head to a Wisconsin Walmart
Last year's prognosticators made a lot of Swiss misses
Small farmers in Zimbabwe may teach insurance giants how to do good while doing well
Can crude interest bind Russia and the U.S. together?

Features

World on Demand Netflix's march around the globe begins with a Brazilian binge
	Ser all

Coal Bull Can West Virginia's new governor make Trump's promises to miners come true? 46

Yes, the Guy in Those Ads The story of the very well-rested, very rich MyPillow mogul

Etc.

How Shivani Rawat, a 31-year-old Indian American woman, became the "it" indie producer	59
Beauty: Lotions that turn back time	62
Marketing: Vodka in a box. The worst idea since canned beer?	64
Design: Five ways to bring your bike inside—and not trip on it	65
The Critic: Valley of the Gods tours California's techtopia with Peter Thiel's brilliant "stopouts"	66
What I Wear to Work: Lawyer Mauricio Uribe tries out a three-piece suit for the first time	67
How Did I Get Here? Chip Bergh, Levi's CEO, on the Old Spice guy and a dog named Swiffer	68