

Table of contents

Foreword to the 2 nd edition (2016) Petr Zlatohlávek	7
Introduction Petr Zlatohlávek	9
I. Hybrid warfare: its concept, potential and how to fight it Zdeněk Kríž, Zinaida Bechná, Peter Števkov	10
1. Hybrid warfare as a concept	10
1.1. Working definition of hybrid warfare	10
2. Use of elements of hybrid warfare against Georgia and Ukraine	11
2.1. Georgia 2008	11
2.2. Ukraine 2014–2015	12
3. Is this a new approach? The Czech academic debate on hybrid warfare	13
3.1. State of art on hybrid warfare in Czech academic cycles	14
4. Potential of hybrid warfare	15
5. Venues for future: proposed measures for improving the ability of states to face hybrid warfare	17
6. NATO's response to hybrid threats	18
Bibliography	20
II. Increasing resilience of the Czech Republic to hybrid threats Miroslav Mareš	24
1. Introduction	24
2. Historical experience	24
3. Current threats	25
4. International impact on Czech resilience	25
5. Hybrid threats and hybrid warfare as reflected in Czech strategic documents	26
6. Institutional changes	26
7. The main gaps	26
8. Final recommendations	27
Bibliography	28