A MUSICIAN OF searching intellect, generous spirit and formidable purpose, Zuzana Růžičková is one of the 20th century's most influential harpsichordists. Central to her career, the music of Bach also helped her to transcend with grace the extraordinary adversity she faced during World War II and the Communist era. "There is something above us, near to us, which makes absolute sense, but we don't see it. Bach tells you: 'Don't despair, there is a sense in life and in the world.'"
