"Chopin's music is like a breath of a young soul, with no time to be indifferent to love", says Khatia Buniatishvili. The Georgian pianist, whom the London Evening Standard described as "a force of nature [with] a truly staggering technique to generate performances that leave you gasping" dedicates her second album to Frédéric Chopin. Buniatishvili presents her very personal approach to the composer with a programme encompassing five masterpieces, among them the Sonata No. 2 with the famous Funeral March as well as the Second Piano Concerto.
