

■ IN BRIEF

- 14 ● Immelt steps down at GE ● The $664,300 parking space ● One Uber director probably wishes he talked less

■ REMARKS

- 16 Torn by tribalism, the world needs U.S. leadership. It won't come from Trump

■ VIEW

- 18 Macron's big plans for France may get a boost from a big margin in Parliament

1 BUSINESS

- 20 An atlas of pain: Where Brexit will hurt the most
- 22 The other Kushner, Josh—a founder of health insurer Oscar—is keen to keep Obamacare
- 23 Airbnb finds that China's short-term rental market is getting booked up
- 25 Artifact: GE needs a lightbulb to go off for its new CEO

2 TECHNOLOGY

- 27 Travis Kalanick takes a timeout from Uber
- 28 The Soviet statistician who keeps Russian offices running
- 29 Big Case: Pharma bro Martin Shkreli goes on trial for fraud
- 30 Apple bends its rules to get cheaper iPhones to Indians

3 FINANCE

- 35 Earnings and IPOs? The kids today want cryptocurrencies and ICOs
- 37 Buyout "barbarian" KKR tries a more civilized approach to workers' compensation
- 38 Stocks: Nasdaq right now is like a vampire. It's all about the FANGs

4 ECONOMICS

- 41 A startup gives Maine's shoemaking industry some new soul
- 43 Inflation may be staying low, but the Fed is taking rates higher
- 44 Shenzhen and Hong Kong join forces to create their very own Silicon Swamp

5 POLITICS

- 46 Will Mueller's dream team be Trump's nightmare?
- 48 With an election coming, Germany steps up its cyberdefenses
- 49 A bankrupt solar panel maker may find an unlikely ally in the White House
- 50 The winner in Georgia's special House election: Atlanta TV stations