
Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	1
1 Cynicism, or The Reification of Postmodernism	15
1. A Caricature of Postmodernity?	15
2. Postmodernism vs. Authenticity	19
3. Postmodern Cynicism: Encompassed, and Dismissed	30
4. Cynicism as a Means of Individual Volition	41
5. Reiteration: The Postmodern is a Temporary Historical Blip	45
2 'No Turning Back': The Fetishization of Authenticity	50
1. The Desire for Semiotic 'Transparency'	50
2. The End of Politics?	67
3. Private Life and Public Duty	76
4. The Fallacy of 'Community'	81
5. Meditation on Hannah Arendt	89
Excursus: Metaphysics, a.k.a. Deconstruction	90
3 Energy vs. Depth: The Lure of Banality	104
1. Articulation of the Opposition	104
2. Rameau's Nephew: Disruption of the Opposition	111
3. Postmodern Indeterminacy: An Ethics of Abjection	116

4.	'Energy without Depth': Symptomatology of the USA	121
	Interlude: Clarification of Terms	133
5.	'Depth without Energy': Symptomatology of Europe	138
6.	Eichmann: Case Study in Interiority	153
7.	Summary: Politics, Introspection, Postmodernity	165
4	On Self-belief, and the Qualified Capitulation	173
1.	Between Society and the 'Lofty Perch'	173
2.	An Excursion Along the 'Middle Way' of G.K. Chesterton	178
3.	A Pair of Modern Chestertons	185
4.	Conclusion: Cynicism and Postmodernity	195
	Afterword: On Politics, Metaphysics, and the 'Postmodern Political'	204
1.	Thesis	204
2.	Antithesis	207
3.	Synthesis	211
	Notes	218
	Index	241