

Contents

Introduction: Dignity as a Way of Living	1
1 Dignity as Autonomy	6
Being a Subject – Being an End in Itself – Slaughterhouses – What If It is Voluntary? – Humiliation as Demonstrated Powerlessness – Escaping to an Inner Fortress – Having Rights – Being Patronized – Caring Paternalism – Respect for Alterity and Conviction – Dependence: Asking and Begging – Begging for Feelings – Inner Autonomy: Thought – Inner Autonomy: Wanting and Deciding – Inner Autonomy: Emotions – Inner Autonomy: Self-Image and Censorship – Humiliation Through Serfdom – Autonomy Through Self-Knowledge – Needing Therapy – Dignity Through Work – Money
2 Dignity as Encounter	55
When Subjects Encounter Each Other – Commitment and Distancing – Recognition – Equal Rights – Putting Someone on Display – Sex Objects – Human Commodity – Neglect – Talk To Me! – Laughing at Someone – Denying Explanation – Manipulation – Deception – Seduction – Overpowering – Working With a Therapist – No Pity, Thank You! – Encounters Between Autonomous Individuals – Leaving an Open Future to the Other – Dignified Partings

3 Dignity as Respect for Intimacy	96
The Dual Need for Intimacy – Feeling the Other’s Gaze – What is a Defect? – The Logic of Shame – Shame as Humiliation – Dignity as Conquered Shame – The Intimate Space – The Innermost Zone – Dignified Disclosures – Undignified Disclosures – Shared Intimacy – Betrayed Intimacy as Lost Dignity – A Challenge: Intimacy as a Lack of Courage
4 Dignity as Truthfulness	132
Lying to Others – Lying to Oneself – Honesty and Its Limits – Calling Things by Their Proper Name – Saving One’s Face – Bullshit
5 Dignity as Self-Respect	150
Dignity Through Limits – Fluid Self-Images – Destroying Self-Respect – Sacrificing Self-Respect – Breaking Self- Respect – Responsibility for Oneself
6 Dignity as Moral Integrity	166
Moral Autonomy – Moral Dignity – Dignity in Guilt and Forgiveness – Punishment: Development Instead of Destruction – Absolute Moral Boundaries?
7 Dignity as a Sense of What Matters	195
Meaning of Life – One’s Own Voice – Equanimity as a Sense of Proportion – The View from the End
8 Dignity as the Acceptance of Finitude	209
When Others Lose Themselves – Escape – Losing Oneself: Resistance – Losing Oneself: Accepting the Journey into Darkness – Dying – Letting Someone Die – Ending One’s Life – Responsibility Towards the Dead
References and Further Reading	238
Credits	244