

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	1
1 Historians and the Question of Biography	7
Introduction	7
Biography and history in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries	9
Thomas Carlyle and the idea of biography as history	11
The professionalisation of history	14
Marxist history and the question of biography	17
Biography and history in the twentieth century	19
Changing ideas about the role of biography in history	23
2 A History of Biography	27
Introduction	27
The emergence of modern biography	29
'How delicate, decent is English biography, bless its mealy mouth!': the changing pattern of biography in the nineteenth century	33
The 'new' biography and the inner life in the early twentieth century	38
Biography and the quest for understanding	40
Feminist impulses	44
3 Collective Biography	47
Introduction	47
Encyclopaedias and universal biography	48

National biography in the nineteenth century	50
Women and collective biography	54
Prosopography	56
Contemporary dictionaries of biography	58
From collective to group biography	59
Group Biography	61
4 Auto/biography and Life Writing	66
Introduction	66
Life writing	69
Auto/biography	71
History and autobiography	73
Historian's autobiographies	80
5 Interpreting and Constructing Lives	85
Introduction	85
The biographer's craft	86
Biography and psychoanalysis	91
Texts and performances	97
6 Changing Biographical Practices	103
Introduction	103
The gender of biography	105
New biographical subjects	111
The individual and the wider world	116
Conclusion	122
Glossary	125
Notes	128
Further Reading	145
Index	149