

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Table of Cases	xi

Introduction	1
Outline of the Book	9

Part I: EU Citizenship and the Equality Problem

1. The Evolution of Equality in EU Law: From Nationality Discrimination Towards Equal Citizenship	15
1.1 Introduction	15
1.2 The Multiple Face of Equal Treatment Irrespective of Nationality in Regard to Private Individuals	15
1.2.1 An Economic Right Under Article 45 TFEU	15
1.2.2 A Citizenship Right Under Article 18 TFEU	16
1.2.3 A Fundamental Right Under the EU Charter	19
1.2.4 A Human Right Under the ECHR	21
1.3 Beyond Nationality Discrimination: The Emergence of a New Equality Problem	24
1.4 The Quest for Equal Citizenship in EU Law: Something Different?	33
1.5 Conclusion	39
2. Equal Treatment: A (Limited) Right of All EU Citizens	40
2.1 Introduction	40
2.2 The Scope of the Right: Comparability Between EU Citizens	41
2.2.1 A Personal Right to Equal Treatment—Comparability Based on What?	41
2.2.2 Union Workers and the Status-Based Right to Equal Treatment: A Story of Strong Comparability	44
The Status of a Union Worker	44
Accepted Limitations: A Narrow Approach	47
2.2.3 Union Citizens and the Residence-Based Right to Equal Treatment: A Story of Weak Comparability	50
The Requirement of Lawful Residence	52
Unequal Treatment Between EU Citizens as an ‘Inevitable Consequence’ of EU Law?	55

2.2.4	EU Citizens' Derived Right to Equal Treatment: The Structural Equality Problem	57
2.3	The Limitations on the Right: Relevant Differences Between EU Citizens	63
2.3.1	Unlawful Discrimination or Legitimate Differential Treatment?	63
2.3.2	A 'Real Link' with the Geographical Employment Market: A Story of de jure Economic Criteria	67
	D'Hoop: Introducing the Economic 'Real Link' Test.....	67
	Collins: Constitutionalising the Economic 'Real Link' Test?.....	68
	Vatsouras and Koupatantze: The Combined Application of Directive 2004/38 and Article 45 TFEU—Still More Economic than Constitutional.....	69
2.3.3	A 'Real Link' Based on Other Social and Economic Factors: A Story of de facto Economic Criteria	71
	Bidar: Towards a Non-economic 'Real Link' Test.....	71
	Förster: A Formalistic Interpretation of the 'Real Link' Test	73
	Commission v Austria and Prinz and Seeberger : A More Substantive, but Still Economic, Version of the 'Real Link' Test	75
	From Brey to Dano : The Contested Role of Individual Circumstances in Defining Relevant Integration.....	78
2.3.4	The Lack of Non-economic Criteria for Legitimate Differential Treatment: The Substantive Equality Problem	82
2.4	Conclusion.....	87
3.	EU Citizens' Responsibility to be Active and its Alternatives	89
3.1	Introduction	89
3.2	Equal Citizenship as a Problem of Belonging.....	90
3.3	Proving Belonging or 'How Economic and Social Activity Trump EU Citizenship'	95
3.3.1	Equal Treatment Based on the Individual Responsibility to be Active	96
3.3.2	Theorising the Requirement of ex ante Integration	101
3.4	What is Wrong with the Activity-Based Account of Equality in EU Law?	103
3.4.1	Egalitarian Justice as a Liberal Ideal of Equal Opportunities	104
3.4.2	Egalitarian Justice as a Democratic Ideal of Human Relations.....	108

3.4.3	Justifying a More Relational Account of Justice Transnationally: The Crux of the EU Equality Problem.....	112
3.5	From Assimilation to Agency: Two Possible Solutions to the EU Equality Problem.....	122
3.5.1	More Comparability Between EU Citizens: A Cul-de-Sac.....	123
3.5.2	Revising the Reductionist View of Agency in EU Law: A Way Forward.....	125
3.5.3	Linking EU Citizens' Agency to their Subjectivity: A Road-Map for a More Balanced View of Agency.....	128
3.6	Conclusion.....	131

Part II: EU Citizenship as a Source of Subjectivity

4.	(Re)constructing EU Citizenship as a Source of Subjectivity.....	135
4.1	Introduction.....	135
4.2	Subjectivity In and Through Relationships: A Feminist Approach to EU Citizenship.....	136
4.2.1	Citizenship, Agency, and Subjectivity: A Triangle.....	137
4.2.2	Affirming Intersubjective Relations Between Citizens.....	141
4.3	Subjectivity as a Process: A Psycho-Dynamic Approach to EU Citizenship.....	146
4.3.1	Self as a 'Relational Subject'.....	148
4.3.2	Self as a 'Subject-in-Process'.....	151
4.3.3	Why Political Subjects Need Agency.....	157
4.4	Subjectivity and the Second-Person Perspective: A Phenomenological Approach to EU Citizenship.....	161
4.4.1	Subjectivity Through the 'Second-Person Perspective'.....	162
4.4.2	A Meaningful Relationship to the Other.....	165
4.5	Transnational Subjectivity as a Dyadic Process of Becoming Between the Self and the Other.....	167
4.6	Conclusion.....	169
5.	EU Citizens as Equal Subjects of European Integration: Practice and Theory.....	170
5.1	Introduction.....	170
5.2	A Constitutional Constructive Perspective on EU Citizenship.....	170
5.3	EU Citizens' Subjectivity as a Matter of Law.....	174
5.3.1	A More Independent Equality Objective for EU Law.....	175

5.3.2	A New Test for Legitimate Differential Treatment Between EU Citizens.....	176
5.4	EU Citizens' Subjectivity as a Matter of Integration Theory.....	179
5.4.1	Meaningful Relationships Between EU Citizens: A Source of New 'Associative Duties'?.....	180
5.4.2	European Integration: A Dynamic Process of Deepening Interdependence?.....	181
5.5	Conclusion.....	184
	Conclusions.....	185
	Bibliography	192
	Index	209