

CONTENTS

Contents v

Foreword by Carmen Fariña viii

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction When Things Don't Feel Quite Right, We Can Do Better xiv

“His Behavior Is No Longer Our Problem” xv

REFLECTION What Troubles Me About My Classroom Management? xviii

CHAPTER 1 WHO AM I? WHO ARE MY STUDENTS? 1

Teacher and Student Demographics 2

Understanding Our Responses to Race and Gender 3

Color-Blindness 4

White Guilt 5

Lack of Perspective 5

Fear 5

Teacher–Student Relationships 5

REFLECTION What Do I Know About My Students? 7

How to Build More Positive Teacher–Student Relationships 9

Learn About Your Students' Lives Outside of School 9

Use What You Learn About Students to Grow a Connection 11

Show Children That You Will Keep Them Safe 11

Show Students Who Are Having a Hard Time That You Care and Are Available 12

Spend Nontraditional Academic Time or Nonacademic Time with Students 12

Validate Their Feelings 13

Speak with Positivity and Compassion 13

CHAPTER 2 WHAT DO I WANT FOR MY STUDENTS? 15

REFLECTION What Behavior Do I Expect from Other Adults? 18

Social–Emotional Competencies 20

How Should Child Development Inform Our Expectations? 22

How to Identify Social–Emotional Learning: Continuum Tool 25

SOAR SEL Continuum 28

Rewards and Consequences Don't Work 34

CHAPTER 3 HOW DO I SET BOUNDARIES AND TEACH EXPECTATIONS? 38

Any Expected Behavior Must Be Taught 40

How to Teach Expected Behaviors Through Classroom Rules and Procedures 42

Imagine the Procedure: What Should It Look Like, Sound Like? 43

Co-create Rules with Your Students 45

Follow Through: Remind, Reinforce, and Redirect 46

How to Communicate Emotional Objectivity 53

Extending Emotional Objectivity to Teachers 53

REFLECTION How Can I Evaluate My Emotional Objectivity? 59

CHAPTER 4 WHY DO CHILDREN MISBEHAVE AND HOW SHOULD I RESPOND? 61

The Cause for Misbehavior Matters 62

When Misbehavior Occurs, Offer a Positive Choice 64

How to Respond to Misbehavior: A Change-Over-Time Approach 64

REFLECTION How Can Inquiry Inform My Response to Misbehavior? 68

Formalizing Peer Feedback 70

Suspensions Don't Work—and Aren't Fair 74

CHAPTER 5 HOW CAN INSTRUCTION HELP STUDENTS PRACTICE AND REFLECT ON BEHAVIOR? 77

- Our Academic Lives Promote Specific Behaviors 78
- How to Create Instruction That Develops the Learner 80
 - High Expectations* 81
 - Opportunities for Active Engagement* 81
 - Scaffolded Support* 82
 - Just-Right Challenges* 83
 - Opportunities for Social Interaction* 84
- REFLECTION What Opportunities Does My Instruction Offer Students? 92
 - Control What You Can 94
- Conclusion Defining Responsibility 95
- References 99