

Contents

Preface ix

Part I: Introduction

1. Introducing the Six Adaptations 3

“Thumbnail sketches” of the six adaptations 11

Identifying the six adaptations 19

The model and its basis in reality 20

Part II: The Model of Personality Adaptations

2. A Developmental Perspective 27

Introversion-extraversion, energy level and the adaptations 27

“Surviving” vs. “performing” adaptations 29

3. The Structure of Personality 34

The theoretical framework: personality structure and ego states 34

Structural analysis of the six personality adaptations 42

4. Issues in Change for the Different Adaptations 51

The theoretical framework: life script 51

Typical life-script patterns for the six adaptations 60

5. Putting It All Together: The Six Adaptations in Detail 72

Enthusiastic-Overreactor (Histrionic) 72

Responsible-Workaholic (Obsessive-Compulsive) 76

Brilliant-Skeptic (Paranoid) 79

Creative-Daydreamer (Schizoid) 83

Playful-Resister (Passive-Aggressive) 87

Charming-Manipulator (Antisocial) 91

6. Combinations of Adaptations 97

7. Relation of the Adaptations to the DSM-IV-TR Classifications 106

Part III: Diagnosing the Six Adaptations

- 8. Driver Behaviours: a Key to Diagnosis 115
Driver messages and driver behaviours 115
How drivers correspond to the six adaptations 117

- 9. Other Clues to Diagnosing the Adaptations 127

Part IV: Achieving and Maintaining Rapport

- 10. How to Avoid Inviting Drivers 139

- 11. The Five Modes of Communication 145
Matching communication mode to personality adaptation 149

- 12. Using the Ware Sequence for Rapport 153
Working with the “doors” and the five modes 156

- 13. How the Personality Adaptations Interact 161

Part V: Inviting Personal Change

- 14. Doing Therapy with the Different Personality Adaptations 169

- The therapeutic framework 170
Redecision therapy and the personality adaptations 175
Working with combined adaptations 184
Tracking movements around the Process Model 189

- 15. Confronting the Process Script 196

- Confrontations for each of the process script types 201

- 16. Using the Process Model in Therapy: an Overview 204

Part VI: Advanced Applications of the Model

17. Diagnosis and Treatment Planning Using the Six Personality Adaptations 215

Correlating adaptations with the quadrants 221

18. Borderline and Narcissistic Personality Disorders 226

Borderline personality disorder 229

Narcissistic personality disorder 232

Treatment 235

Part VII: Personal Change in Practice: Transcripts of Therapy

19. The Histrionic Client: Reclaiming Personal Power 247

20. The Obsessive-Compulsive Client: Learning to “Be” 262

21. The Paranoid Client: Feeling Safe in the World 279

22. The Schizoid Client: Owning Feelings and Needs 299

23. The Passive-Aggressive Client: Letting Go of Struggle 313

24. The Antisocial Client: Becoming Real 323

25. The Client with Combined Adaptations 341

Afterword 349

Appendices

A. Relating the Personality Adaptations to Previous Classification Systems 355

Historical origins 355

Modern formulations 358

Psychoanalytic contributions 364

Learned coping patterns 372

Pathological versus non-pathological schemas 376

B. Measuring the Adaptations 380

Personality trait measurement 380

Designing an instrument to measure the personality adaptations 381

Conclusions 388

C. Joines Personality Adaptation Questionnaire 389

References 392

Glossary 403

Index 409

Ordering information 419