

Contents

| | |
|--|------------|
| List of plates | ix |
| List of figures | xi |
| List of maps | xiii |
| List of tables | xiv |
| Preface | xvii |
| List of abbreviations | xx |
| | |
| PART I | |
| Introduction | 1 |
| 1 The political economy of environmental transitions | 3 |
| 2 Theorizing social and environmental change | 19 |
| | |
| PART II | |
| Nature, risk and the legacies of state socialism | 37 |
| 3 Environmental quality in Central and Eastern Europe | 39 |
| 4 Nature, society and extensive industrialization | 84 |
| 5 Social and environmental regulation under state socialism | 105 |
| 6 Constructing risk: environment and health | 127 |
| | |
| PART III | |
| Post-communist transformations and the environment | 157 |
| 7 Post-communist reform and the democratization of nature | 159 |
| 8 Environmental legislation and policy: regulatory successes and strong opposition | 194 |
| 9 State, environment and information in post-communist transformations | 216 |

10 Environmental effects of post-communist transformations 242

PART IV

Nature in post-communist societies 287

11 Conclusion 289

Notes 301

Bibliography 320

Index 353