

Contents

2001 – [Mis]Understanding Postmodernism

Foreword: How Can We Act (Write and Read) Before We Understand?	7
Josef Jařab, Palacky University, Czech Republic
Game, Postmodernism, The Sacred, and the Materialisms of Science: Figuring Post-Enlightenment American Culture	15
Ronald Schleifer, University of Oklahoma, U.S.A.
Chronology and Its Discontent: History and Fiction in U.S. Postmodern Writing	30
Walter Hölbling, Karl-Franzens-Universität Graz, Austria
Postmodern Selves in Recent American Autobiography	43
Isabel Durán, Universidad Complutense, Spain
Reality and History in Postmodern Fiction: On the Contribution of Postmodern Fiction	68
Pi-hua Ni, National University of Kaohsiung, Taiwan
[Mis]understanding Pynchon: Different Readings of Thomas Pynchon's Experiments with Text and History in Gravity's Rainbow	90
Inger Hunnerup Dalsgaard, American Studies Center Aarhus, Denmark
The [Pri:' fiks] Rules: American Psycho and the Poetics of [Mis]	112
Bernd Herzogenrath, University of Cologne, Germany
What is and What is Not Postmodernism: [Mis]Understanding Donald Barthelme's Novel Paradise	131
Jaroslav Kušnřr, University of Prešov, Slovakia
Postmodernist Features in Recent American-Jewish Writing	149
Alena Smiešková, University of Constantine the Philosopher, Slovakia
Thin Gray Lines: The Quicksilver Mix of Realism, Modernism, and Postmodernism in the Fiction of Philip Roth	156
James Grove, Mount Mercy College, U.S.A.
Gerald Vizenor's Postmodern Fiction	185
Alan R. Velie, University of Oklahoma, U.S.A.

Contents

2002 – The Fiction of Politics and the Politics of Fiction

Literature as a Political Tool?	203
Michal Peprník, Palacky University, Czech Republic
National Dreams and Rude Awakenings: The Global Warnings of American Fiction	218
Emory Elliot, University of California, Riverside, U.S.A.
“I Have No Knowledge of Any Such Activities”: Half a Century of American ‘Democracy Noir’ Narratives	236
Charles E. Gannon, St. Bonaventure University, U.S.A.
Simulated Politics: Fictional Representation of Truth in the Electronic Media	257
Norbert Gyuris, University of Pécs, Hungary
Brundefly for President: Cronenberg, Kafka, and the Fiction of Insect Politics	273
Bernd Herzogenrath, University of Cologne, Germany
The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly and the Plots of U.S. Foreign Policy	291
Walter Hölbling, Karl-Franzens-Universität Graz, Austria
The Politics of Discourse in Toni Morrison’s Trilogy	303
Justina Tally, University of La Laguna, Spain
Iron Curtains and Satin Sheets: “Strange Loves” in Cold War Popular Music	323
Russell Reising, University of Toledo, U.S.A.
“New Man” as New Writer and New Reader: Essays in Russian and American Radicalism	352
Tatiana Venediktova, Moscow State University, Russia
Fiction Politics or, They Ought to Have Known Better	362
Jaroslav Peprník, Palacky University, Czech Republic
Contributors	383