

CONTENTS

Preface

By prof. MUDr. Rudolf Bureš. 11

J. E. Purkyně — a creative Scientist

By prof. MUDr. Vladislav Kruta DrSc. 13

Childhood, years of study and maturation	18
At the university	25
His doctor's thesis	30
Investigations concerning vertigo.	37
Experiments concerning the effects of drugs	41
Securing means of livelihood	45
A scientist and a poet	50
The Breslau dissertation	53
Further research in the physiology of vision	62
The new concept and position of physiology	65
Course in experimental physiology	69
Experimental investigation of the functions of the cerebrum and cerebellum	71
The development of the bird's egg	75
The structure of plants	79
The physiology of human speech	81
Microscopic investigations	85
Ciliary movement	93
The investigation of digestion	96
Physiological morphology	100
The first physiological institute	103
The last creative effort	108

The world outlook of Jan Evangelista Purkyně

By RNDr. Mikuláš Teich CSc. 117

The Early Years	121
University Years in Prague	124
The Years in Breslau	129
Return to Prague	134