

TABLE OF CONTENT

Preface	7
Introduction	9
I. QUALIFICATION AND SKILL REQUIREMENTS IN RELATION TO INTEGRATION INTO THE EUROPEAN LABOUR MARKET	13
I.1 SKILLS AND COMPETENCIES	13
I.1.1 Skills and competencies policies	13
I.1.2 The importance of education and training	15
I.1.3 Objectives of education and training	16
I.1.4 The level of human capital and a knowledge-based economy	23
I.1.5 Employment in knowledge-intensive industries	24
I.1.6 The quality of human resources as a precondition for competitiveness	31
I.1.7 Opportunities and limitations concerning further development	36
I.2 THE INFLUENCE OF INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGIES ON TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT	38
I.2.1 National and EU policies concerned with the use of ICT in education and training	38
I.2.2 Accessibility and use of information and communication technologies (ICT)	40
I.2.3 Socio-economic aspects of the use and development of ICT	45
I.2.4 Opportunities for further development	49
I.3 PREPAREDNESS OF YOUNG PEOPLE, SCHOOL-LEAVERS AND GRADUATES TO ENTER THE WORLD OF WORK	50
I.3.1 Distinctive features of school-leavers and graduates	50
I.3.2 The context of transition from education to the world of work	62
I.3.3 Process and results of the transition of school-leavers and graduates to the world of work	65
I.3.4 Important factors in the transition of school-leavers to the labour market and opportunities for further development	72
I.3.5 Guidance in education and employment	72
II. PARTICIPATION IN CONTINUING EDUCATION AND TRAINING	81
II.1 CONTINUING TRAINING OF EMPLOYEES	82
II.1.1 Enterprises providing continuing vocational training to their employees	82
II.1.2 Forms of continuing training of employees	83
II.1.3 The rate of participation of employees in continuing vocational training	85
II.1.4 The length and content of continuing vocational training	86
II.1.5 Costs of training of employees	87
II.1.6 Development of training in Czech enterprises	89
II.1.7 Opportunities for further development	90

II.2 CONTINUING EDUCATION AND TRAINING OF THE POPULATION OF THE CZECH REPUBLIC	91
II.2.1 How many people participate in education	91
II.2.2 Factors affecting the structure of individuals participating in CVT	94
II.2.3 The reasons for pursuing CVT and its intensity	96
II.2.4 Retraining	96
II.2.5 Opportunities for further development	98
II.3 DEMAND FOR CVT ON THE PART OF ENTERPRISES AND THE EXISTING SUPPLY	98
II.3.1 Demand for CVT on the part of enterprises	98
II.3.2 CVT provision	100
II.4 CONCLUSIONS	103
III. REQUIREMENTS AND CONDITIONS OF LABOUR MARKET FLEXIBILITY	107
III.1 LABOUR FLEXIBILITY AND MOBILITY	107
III.1.1 Institutional-legislative environment and actors of flexibility	109
III.1.2 Main forms of flexibility and their use	118
III.1.3 Labour force changes and labour mobility	124
III.1.4 Conclusions and recommendations	132
III.2 ENTREPRENEURSHIP	134
III.2.1 EU incentives for the development of entrepreneurship	134
III.2.2 The development of entrepreneurship in the CR in 1995 - 2002	135
III.2.3 Conclusions	147