

CONTENTS

Figures and Tables	6
Introduction	9
PART 1 THEORETICAL BACKGROUND
Chapter One
ACADEMIC DISCOURSE	12
1.1 Research on academic discourse	12
1.2 Definitions of the terms used	14
1.2.1 Text and discourse.....	14
1.2.2 Text.....	16
1.2.3 Text type.....	19
1.2.4 Genre.....	22
1.3 Academic writing, genre and social dimension	23
1.3.1 Genre and social dimension.....	24
1.3.2 The social context of academic writing.....	26
1.3.3 Discourse as social action.....	28
1.3.4 Genre analysis concept.....	29
1.3.4.1 Discourse community and its social dimension.....	30
1.3.4.2 Social dimensions of genre.....	32
1.4 Research article and academic writing	33
1.4.1 Research article as a text type.....	33
1.4.1.1 Interaction in research article.....	34
1.4.2 Research article as a genre.....	36
1.4.3 Research article structure.....	37
1.4.3.1 Argumentative vs. experimental research articles.....	39
1.5 Research and methodological considerations	42
1.5.1. Implications and perspectives.....	42
1.5.2 The corpus.....	44

PART 2 ANALYTICAL PART

Chapter Two

PASSIVE VOICE – GRAMMATICAL-RHETORICAL ASPECTS.....	47
2.1 Theoretical and conceptual background.....	47
2.1.1 Research on voice.....	47
2.1.2 The passive in academic texts.....	49
2.1.3 Aims and research methodology.....	52
2.2 Data analysis: The rhetorical macrostructure.....	53
2.2.1 Hypotheses.....	54
2.2.2 Results.....	55
2.2.2.1 Quantitative analysis.....	55
2.2.2.2 Qualitative analysis – rhetorical functions and macrostructure.....	56
2.3 Data analysis: Passivization as a systemic potentiality in research articles.....	74
2.3.1 Passives in text perspective: additive textual functions....	75
2.3.1.1 The depersonalised text perspectivization....	76
2.3.1.2 Cohesive and coherent effects of passives....	77
2.3.1.3 The objectivization of described events.....	78
2.3.1.4 Non-agentive and agentive passivization.....	82
2.4 Summary.....	91

Chapter Three

LEXICAL PATTERNING.....	93
3.1 Cohesion.....	93
3.2 Lexical cohesion.....	94
3.2.1 Halliday and Hasan's 1976 framework.....	96
3.2.2 Stotsky's 1983 framework.....	97
3.2.3 Hasan's 1984 framework.....	100
3.2.4 Hoey's 1991 framework.....	101
3.3 The application of Hoey's framework.....	103
3.3.1 Types of repetition.....	103
3.3.2 Links and bonds.....	108
3.3.2.1 Links.....	108
3.3.2.2 Bonds.....	110
3.3.3 Repetition matrices.....	111
3.3.4 Central and marginal sentences.....	115
3.3.5 Topic-opening and topic-closing sentences.....	115

3.3.6	Research methodology.....	116
3.4	Data analysis.....	118
3.4.1	Text 1 – Introduction.....	118
3.4.2	Text 2 – Introduction.....	128
3.4.3	The whole-text summary.....	135
3.4.4	Summary evaluation and interpretation.....	138
3.5	Summary.....	142

Chapter Four

PRONOUNS AND WRITER IDENTITY.....		145
4.1	Theoretical considerations.....	145
4.2	Deictic semantics and role relationships of pronouns.....	149
4.2.1	Personal pronouns: theoretical background.....	150
4.2.2	Frequency of personal pronouns.....	152
4.2.3	Qualitative analysis – semantic references.....	153
4.2.3.1	The first-person pronouns I and we	153
4.2.3.2	The pronoun you	163
4.2.3.3	The third-person pronouns.....	165
4.2.3.4	The indefinite one	169
4.2.4	Discussion.....	171
4.2.4.1	Quantitative analysis.....	171
4.2.4.2	Quantitative analysis.....	172
4.3	Pronouns and writer identity: gender aspects.....	177
4.3.1	Academic writing and gender.....	178
4.3.2	Grammatical gender – a historical overview.....	179
4.3.3	Descriptive and prescriptive tradition.....	181
4.3.4	Recent research on gender.....	185
4.3.5	Methods.....	188
4.3.6	Results.....	189
4.3.7	Discussion.....	194
4.4	Summary.....	196

Chapter Five

CONCLUSION.....	199
BIBLIOGRAPHY.....	207
APPENDIX.....	216
SOUHRN.....	232