

TABLE OF CONTENTS

| | |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Introduction | 15 |
| Objectives and Structure of the Study | 17 |
| 1. Centre of Government: Role of Government Offices in Modern State Administration | 23 |
| 1.1. Factors causing the need for change | 23 |
| 1.2. Factors affecting the shape of the government office | 25 |
| 1.3. Types of government offices..... | 27 |
| 1.4. Functions of the government office | 28 |
| 2. Methods of Co-ordination of the Central State Administration - Role of the Government Office in Co-ordination of Crosscutting Agendas | 35 |
| 2.1. Introduction | 35 |
| 2.2. Position of the government office in the state administration system..... | 36 |
| 2.3. Co-ordination of crosscutting projects | 40 |
| 2.4. Management of specific crosscutting projects | 41 |
| 2.5. Other crosscutting agendas in the domain of the government office | 43 |
| 3. Models of Government Offices | 49 |
| 3.1. Categorisation of government offices by mission | 49 |
| 3.2. Characteristics of the administrative model | 50 |
| 3.3. Characteristics of the co-ordinative model..... | 51 |
| 4. Recommendations and Comments of International Organisations and Experts | 55 |
| 4.1. Government office as guarantor of government's reliability | 56 |
| 4.2. Increasing need of effective and consistent co-ordination – government office as seen by the OECD and SIGMA | 60 |
| Conclusion | 63 |
| Annexes | 65 |
| Strategic Planning and Interdepartmental Co-ordination..... | 67 |
| Theory and Practice of Administrative Reform..... | 73 |
| Web Sites of Government Offices..... | 81 |
| References..... | 83 |