

Contents

Preface	6
1. The substance of the issue of Smart Administration (theoretical and methodological starting points for examining the issue)	7
1.1. "Non-management" and "non-innovation" as the causes of failure in territorial administration and development	7
1.2. The cohesion policy and the Territorial Agenda of the EU. The role of Smart Administration in territorial development and good governance	8
1.3. The subject of examination and the orientation of the publication	9
1.4. Set examination objectives and basic issues addressed in the publication	10
1.5. Examination methodology and examination methods	11
1.6. The structure of the publication	12
2. EU cohesion policy as a framework for Smart Administration	15
2.1. Cohesion (regional) policy of the EU	15
2.2. The future of cohesion policy after 2013	24
2.3. The position of Smart Administration within the EU cohesion policy	27
3. Foreign approaches to Smart Administration	29
3.1. Factors that shape the approach to Smart Administration	29
3.2. Prevailing European approaches to and experience with public administration management	38
3.3. The US's experience with effective public administration management	41
3.4. The US's experience: Reinventing Government	43
3.5. A comparison of Czech public administration and the EU countries	45
4. Description of the Czech Republic's approach to Smart Administration	47
4.1. The government Strategy for Implementing Smart Administration in the Czech Republic	47
4.2. The concept of Smart Administration in the National Strategic Reference Framework of the Czech Republic	54
5. Management principles and the "doing the right things right" model	60
5.1. Managing public sector organisations in the Czech Republic	60
5.2. The key to Smart Administration: The 'doing the right things right' model	63
5.3. Result orientation – "doing the right things right"	65
5.4. Research in the area of public administration management	67
6. Smart Administration in territorial development	69
6.1. Definitions of terms used in the chapter	69
6.2. Failure in territorial administration and development – the causes of the crisis	70
6.3. Territorial development instruments	78
6.4. Public investments as a territorial development instrument (Public investments, public investment projects and their evaluation)	82
6.5. Summary	88
7. Strategic planning and Smart Administration	89
7.1. Strategic planning process, approaches, and methods	89
7.2. The BSC method	91
8. Quality, performance and Smart Administration	99
8.1. Approaches to quality and performance	99
8.2. Methods of quality that are used in the Czech Republic's public sector	108
8.3. Subsequent methods and approaches	115
8.4. Conclusion on methods of quality and performance	120
9. Financial management and Smart Administration	121
9.1. Sound financial management	121
9.2. Economical, effective and purposeful allocation of financial resources	123
9.3. Risk Management	127
9.4. Controlling and reporting	129
9.5. The elimination of wasting – the Lean method ('Lean public administration')	133
9.6. Conclusion on financial management	135

10. Modern budgeting methods as a tool of economical, effective and purposeful financing in public administration (experience from the Czech Republic)	135
10.2. The overview of modern budgeting methods as tools for implementing an economical, effective and purposeful allocation of resources.
10.3. Programme-performance budgeting in the Czech Republic	136
10.3. Monitoring of economic efficiency, effectiveness and purposefulness indicators in programme-performance budgeting	139
11. Project management, subsidy management and Smart Administration	141
11.1. What is project, project management and when to use them	141
11.2. Subsidy management, subsidy projects and the phases of their management from the applicant's perspective	142
11.3. Responsibility within Structural Funds subsidy management	144
11.4. Conclusion on project and subsidy management	144
12. Sustainable development and Smart Administration	145
12.1. Sustainable development	145
12.3. Environmental management	150
13. Methods for problem analysis and definition as a tool for the effective exercise of public administration	151
13.1. Actor analysis	152
13.3. Event analysis	155
13.4. Brainstorming	157
13.5. Brainwriting	158
13.6. The 'why-why' diagram	160
13.7. The Ishikawa diagram	162
13.8. Dimensional analysis	164
13.9. Hierarchical analysis	165
13.10. Problem explanation and its depiction in the causal analysis diagram	167
13.11. Classification analysis	168
13.12. Mind maps	171
13.13. The problem tree	173
14. The Ministry for Regional Development's approach to Smart Administration	175
14.1. Experience with modern management methods at the MRD	175
14.2. Smart Administration projects at the Ministry for Regional Development	183
15. Awards for quality, performance and innovation in the Czech Republic	183
15.1. National Quality Award of the Czech Republic	183
15.2. The awards of the Ministry of the Interior for quality and innovation in public administration	183
15.4. Other awards	185
16. Conclusion	187
Summary	192
Bibliography	193
List of electronic appendices	198
The authors	201