

Contents

List of abbreviations	9
Foreword	11
Part I – Liberal Democracy and Chinese Political Culture:
American Perspectives and Perceptions (Jan Hornát)	19
Introduction	20
1. Democracy Promotion in the Context of U.S. Grand Strategy	25
1.1 The “Open Door” and its Implications for Democracy Promotion	27
1.2 Universalization of Liberal Democracy	30
1.3 Democratic Peace Theory	33
1.4 The Democratization Process	38
1.5 Mutual Perception of Political Regimes	39
1.6 The Concept of Political Culture	42
2. The Impact of Confucianism on Chinese Political Culture	45
2.1 Position and Obligation of the Ruler	48
2.2 Perception of the Individual and Authority	52
2.3 Harmony versus Chaos	56
2.4 The Conception of Rights and Duties	59
2.5 Tradition meets Modernity	63
2.6 Failures of Democratic Experiments in China	70
3. A Confucian Democracy?	73
3.1 Dynamism of Political Culture	75
3.2 Democracy with “Chinese Characteristics”	79
3.3 Possible Scenarios for China’s Democracy	81
3.4 The United States and Chinese Democracy	84
Concluding Thoughts	88

Part II – The Impact of China’s Engagement in Sub-Saharan Africa on U.S. Political and Economic Interests on the Continent (2000–2012)
(Lukáš Kindl)	93
Introduction	94
1. China’s Africa Policy	97
1.1 The Goals of China’s Engagement in Africa	98
1.1.1 China’s Economic Growth	99
1.1.2 Political Objectives: China as a Global Power	101
1.1.3 China’s Competition with Taiwan	102
1.2 Key Actors in China’s Policy on Africa	103
1.2.1 Classification and Characteristic of Key Actors	103
1.2.2 The Relations among the Actors: Contradictions in China’s Africa Policy	106
1.3 China’s Strategy in Africa	107
1.3.1 High Profile Diplomacy	107
1.3.2 Package Deals: Resources for Infrastructure	109
1.3.3 Foreign Aid	111
1.3.4 Going to Risky Places	112
1.3.5 Military Cooperation	113
2. The U.S. Policy on Africa	115
2.1 U.S. Goals in Africa	116
2.1.1 Promotion of Democracy and Development	116
2.1.2 Interest in Security and Stability	118
2.1.3 Economic Needs: Energy Security and Export Markets	119
2.1.4 U.S. Humanitarian Goals in Africa	120
2.2 Main Actors in U.S. Policy towards Africa	121
2.2.1 Overview of Key Institutions Involved in U.S. Policy towards Africa	121
2.2.2 Fragmentation of Institutions Responsible for Africa Policy	124
2.3 U.S. Policies towards Africa	125
2.3.1 U.S. Assistance Programs: Promotion of Democracy and Economic Development	126
2.3.2 U.S. Trade Policies towards Africa	131
2.3.3 U.S. Military and Security Policies in Africa	133
3. Case Studies	136
3.1 Case Study: Nigeria	136
3.1.1 Nigeria’s Political and Economic Dynamics	138
3.1.2 Competition between the U.S. and China in the Nigerian oil sector	140
3.1.3 U.S. and China’s Exports to and FDI in Nigeria Compared	144

3.1.4 Political and Security Issues: Interests Converging?	146
3.1.5 Conclusion	148
3.2 Case Study: Angola	149
3.2.1 Angola's Political and Economic Dynamics	150
3.2.2 Competition between the U.S. and China in Angola's Oil Sector	152
3.2.3 U.S. and China's Activity in Non-Oil Sectors of Angola's Economy	156
3.2.4 U.S. and China's Political and Security Interests in Angola	159
3.2.5 Conclusion	162
3.3 Case Study: Sudan	163
3.3.1 Sudan's Political Characteristics and Background of its Civil Wars	163
3.3.2 China's Economic Engagement: Filling the Vacuum after Western Companies	166
3.3.3 China's Engagement as an Obstacle to U.S. Political Goals in Sudan	168
3.3.4 Evolution of China's Position on Non-Interference	171
3.3.5 Conclusion	173
4. Impact of China's Engagement in Africa on U.S. Interests	175
4.1 U.S. and China's Policies on Africa Compared	175
4.1.1 Foreign Assistance	175
4.1.2 Trade	176
4.1.3 Military Policies	178
4.1.4 Diplomacy	179
4.2 U.S. Response to China in Africa	180
4.3 Analysis: China to Push the U.S. Away from Africa?	182
4.4 Analysis: Impact of China's Engagement in Africa on Particular U.S. Interests	184
4.4.1 China's Impact on Democracy and Development Programs	184
4.4.2 China's Impact on U.S. Economic Interests	187
4.4.3 China's Impact on U.S. Security and Humanitarian Interests	191
4.4.4 Conclusions: China's Impact on U.S. Interests and Possible U.S. Response	193
Conclusion	194
Afterword	199
Bibliography – Part I	202
Bibliography – Part II	210
About the Authors	223