

CONTENTS

Series Editors' Foreword	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
1 The Survey Life	1
Origins: Speculation to Survey • Theory and Practice Today
2 The Law, the Process, and the Players	9
Why Survey? • Regulations in the United States • Regulations in Canada • Who Surveys?
3 Survey Design	19
4 Prefield Strategies	23
Implementing the Research Design • The Two-headed Monster • Getting Started: Map It • Background Research
5 Getting into the Field	35
Personnel • Equipment • Local Relations • Native American, Canadian First Nations, and Ethnic Community Issues • Consulting with Other Specialists • Survey Methods • Field Evaluation to Determine Potential Eligibility for the National Register

6	Indirect Exploration Techniques	77
	Metal Detector • Electrical Resistivity • Electromagnetic Conductivity • Ground Penetrating Radar • Magnetometry • Magnetic Susceptibility • Conclusion
7	Recording and Mapping	99
	Reading Maps and Aerial Photographs • Drafting Maps • Global Positioning Systems • Geographic Information Systems • Tomorrow's Technology
8	The Survey Report	111
	Structure and Content
9	Trying to Make It Real, Compared with What?	129
	References	133
	Index	139
	About the Authors and Series Editors	145