Contents

List of figures ix
Introduction xi
Acknowledgments xvii

1. Theory and data: a hermeneutic approach 1
What is theory? 2
Interpretation in everyday life 5
Symbolic interactionism and grounded theory 7
Deductive theory building 7
Simplistic inductive theory building 10
Grounded theory: a sophisticated model 12
Induction, deduction, abduction 13
Postmodernism 15
Feminist standpoint methodology 20
Hermeneutics 23
Summary reflections 29
Further reading 31

2. Politics, rigour and ethics 33
The policy process 34
Examples of applied qualitative research 39
Feminism and participatory action research 43
The value of qualitative methods 44
The unavoidably political consequences of research 46
Rigour and ethics 50
Summary reflections 57
Further reading 58

3. Data analysis during data collection 60
Integrating data collection and data analysis 61
Techniques for integrating analysis and collection 64
Team meetings and peer debriefing 65
Checking interpretations with participants 68
Transcribing, reading and coding early data 70
Journals and memos 71
Sampling and saturation 74

Including participants in all aspects of the research 75
Summary reflections 77
Further reading 78

4. Coding data and interpreting text: methods of analysis 80
Content analysis 82
Coding in thematic analysis and grounded theory 86
Narrative analysis 95
Cultural studies and semiotics 101
Summary reflections 109
Further reading 110

5. Computer-assisted qualitative data analysis 111
Computer-assisted content analysis 113
Interpretive analysis 115
When to use a computer package 116
Coding 121
Retrieval 127
Choosing a CAQDAS program 129
Learning to use a CAQDAS program 130
Potential problems with CAQDAS 132
Summary reflections 135
Further reading 136

6. Writing about qualitative data 138
The process of writing: time, reflection and rhythm 140
Identify your audience 143
Writing styles 144
The use of exemplars 147
Objectivity and the representational crisis 148
Experimental writing 151
Including the personal experience of the researcher 153
The ethics of writing about others 156
The political implications of categorising people 157
Academic publications and community reporting 160
Summary reflections 161
Further reading 162

Concluding reflections 164
Bibliography 167
Index 183