

CONTENTS

About the author	ix
One: Introduction	1
Two: When and where should I give a paper?	5
Who is organising the event?	12
What is it being called?	12
What is the likely composition of the audience?	12
Where is it being held?	13
Are there confirmed speakers already?	13
Are the speakers' expenses being paid?	14
Are there plans to publish the contributions?	14
Are copies of the papers to be distributed in advance?	14
What format will the event use?	15
Three: Calls for papers: how the conference system works	17
Four: Preparing an abstract/outline/synopsis	23
What is an abstract/outline/synopsis?	23
How will the call for papers help me to produce a proposal?	24
So what do I have to do to produce the proposal?	25

Five: Conference paper or presentation?	29
Giving a paper	30
Giving a full-scale presentation	31
Giving an interactive presentation	32
Chairing a conference session	33
Presenting at a research seminar/colloquium/symposium/ research or interview panel	34
Leading a panel/round-table discussion	35
Contributing to a panel/round-table discussion	36
Running a conference workshop	36
Six: Choosing material for an event	38
What shape will a paper be; how will my presentation look?	38
What should I avoid?	41
What sort of material would be suitable?	43
How much material will I need?	45
Where do I go to find material?	46
What about reusing previously disseminated material?	48
Seven: Preparing your material	50
Your six-point plan	51
Your detailed plan	53
Planning as a thinking tool	60
Planning as a communication tool	60
Planning as a control tool	61
The benefits of a clock chart	62
Mode of presentation	65
Eight: Presentation aids	66
Some golden rules	67
Heat and light levels	68
Availability of technology	69
Practicalities	70
Visibility	71
Nerves	72
Boredom levels	73
Flipped learning	75

Formality	76
Timing	77
Post-event impact	79
Nine: Preparing to present	81
1. Rehearsal with script for content and timing	83
2. Rehearsal with script for timing only	84
3. Rehearsal with prompts for content and timing	86
4. Rehearsal with reduced prompts for visual aids	90
5. Rehearsal with prompts and aids for impact	91
6. Final rehearsal for confidence	91
Ten: Delivering your material	94
Using your voice	94
Using your language	99
The pace of delivery	102
Silence in your presentation	104
Your stance as you present	106
Non-verbal communication	107
Eleven: Using your nerves	112
Controlling your nerves	112
Using your nerves	114
Relaxing and breathing well	117
Twelve: Handling questions	121
Thirteen: Poster presentations	130
Why would I give a poster presentation?	130
Where would I give a poster presentation?	131
What might the format for the event be?	131
How big should my poster be?	132
Should I use colour?	133
Is there a font size or style I should use?	133
What about branding?	134
How much material should I include?	134
What if I have too much information?	135

How do I lay out my poster?	136
How can I edit my poster?	136
How best can I proofread my poster?	137
How does a poster become a presentation?	138
How do I use my poster after the event?	139
Fourteen: Making the most of the presentation opportunity	141
Look to the long term	141
Water cooler networking	142
Online brainstorming	142
Targeting your material	143
Multidisciplinary opportunities and research groupings	143
Your career	144
Testing your material	144
Testing yourself	145
Index	146