

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Placing the Gods	i
PART I: The Studiolo and its Histories	27
1. The Study, the Collection, and the Renaissance Self	29
2. Myth and the Articulation of Gender and Space	59
3. Isabella's "Cupidity": Collecting and Literary Production	87
PART II: The Paintings	115
4. Mantegna's Mars and Venus : Poetry, Natural History and the Origins of Art	117
5. Mantegna's Mythic Signatures: Pallas and the Vices	145
6. Tanta amorosa impresa : Isabella, Perugino and Paride da Ceresara	169
7. Lorenzo Costa's Coronation of a Woman Poet and the Renaissance of Sappho	191

8.	“Sweet Counterfeiting and Blandishments”: Courtiership, urbanitas , and Costa’s Comus	205
9.	“Dominate the Stars” Correggio, the Gonzaga, and the Sack of Rome	221
10.	Conclusion: The Rise of Mythological Painting in Sixteenth-Century Italy	251

Appendices

i.	The Library of the Studiolo	270
ii.	Digest of the Correspondence Concerning the Paintings Commissioned for the Studiolo in the Castello (1496–1515) by Clifford M. Brown	280

Notes	302
-------	-----

Bibliography	377
--------------	-----

Index	394
-------	-----

Photograph credits	403
--------------------	-----