

Contents

	page
Preface	xiii
Introduction: a note on the C.R.A.P.E.L.	xix
Part One: Discourse	1
The structure of communicative interaction	12
1 You did say 'oral interactive discourse'? H. Holec	21
2 Interactional structure: the role of role M-J. Gremmo, H. Holec and P. Riley	35
3 When communication breaks down; levels of coherence in discourse P. Riley	47
Reading and communicative competence	67
4 Learning a language — or learning to read? M-J. Gremmo	74
5 From reading to writing acts C. Henner-Stanchina	91
6 A comparative approach to the learning of specialized written discourse O. Régent	105
Part Two: Learning	121
The psychology of learning versus learners' psychology	133

7 Foreign language acquisition processes in a secondary school setting: negation A. Collin and H. Holec	135
8 Mud and stars: personal constructs, sensitization and learning P. Riley	154
Autonomous learning schemes: principles and organization	170
9 On autonomy: some elementary concepts H. Holec	173
10 Two years of autonomy: practice and outlook C. Henner-Stanchina	191
11 Extending self-directed learning of English in an engineering college H. Moulden	206
12 Teaching learning: redefining the teacher's role M-J. Gremmo and D. Abé	233
13 Aspects of autonomous learning. Extracts from: Learning oral expression autonomously D. Abé, C. Henner-Stanchina and O. Régent Evaluation in an autonomous learning scheme C. Henner-Stanchina and H. Holec Taking learners' needs into account in self-directed learning H. Holec An experiment in self-directed group learning P. Riley and M. Sicre	248
The exploitation of authentic materials	283
14 The Sound and Video Library P. Riley and C. Zoppis	286
15 A specialist? What specialist? D. Abé, R. Duda and C. Henner-Stanchina	299
16 Using authentic documents for pedagogical purposes D. Abé, F. Carton, M. Cembalo and O. Régent	321
17 Viewing comprehension: l'oeil écoute P. Riley	332

The functional approach to the acquisition of spoken language	345
18 A beginners' course in spoken English based on the functional approach H. Holec	346
19 Two experiments in communicative teaching M.-J. Gremmo and F. Carton	352
Epilogue	375
Bibliography	377
Index	387