

Contents

Preface	vii
----------------	-----

SECTION I

LITERATURE IN THE CLASSROOM	1
------------------------------------	----------

1 Why literature?	1
--------------------------	----------

1.0 Introduction	1
1.1 Why teach literature?	1
1.2 Literature for study: literature as a resource	3
1.3 Breadth v. depth	4
1.4 Language competence and literary competence	5
1.5 Language-based approaches	7
1.6 Levels of reading: Conclusion	8
1.7 Summary	10

2 Literature and experience	12
------------------------------------	-----------

2.0 Introduction	12
2.1 Representing experience	12
2.2 Processes of reading	16
2.3 Motivating the student	16
2.4 Preparing the student	19
2.5 Relating pre-reading activities to text	22
2.6 Teacher-centred literature classes	23
2.7 Student-centred literature classes	24
2.8 Experiencing language: elementary stylistics	28
2.9 Conclusion	30
2.10 Practical tasks and points for discussion	30

SECTION II

CLASSROOM PROCEDURES	36
-----------------------------	-----------

3 Approaches to texts	36
------------------------------	-----------

3.0 Introduction	36
3.1 A preliminary taxonomy of questions	36
3.2 Developing responses: approaches to theme	42
3.3 Relating the literary text to the student's personal world	45
3.4 Asking and sequencing questions: a summary	52
3.5 In another medium	53
3.6 Prediction: what happens next?	58
3.7 Character and viewpoint: more questions	65
3.8 Using grids and charts	67
3.9 Conclusion	70

	4 Language-based approaches	71
	4.0 Introduction	71
	4.1 Jigsaw reading	71
	4.2 Matching	75
	4.3 Gap-filling	80
	4.4 Reading aloud	81
	4.5 Alternative versions: the uses of paraphrase	88
	4.6 Writing creatively in a foreign language	90
	4.7 Conclusion	93
	5 Hearts and Hands: a case study	94
	5.0 Introduction	94
	5.1 Teaching points	94
	5.2 Sequencing and integrating approaches	97
	5.3 Conclusions	99
	6 Activities for the advanced class	101
	6.0 Introduction	101
	6.1 Language and literariness: using a cline	101
	6.2 Analysing metaphor	110
	6.3 Guided rewriting	116
	6.4 Stylistics: further possibilities	121
	6.5 Reader's theatre: drama in the literature class	123
	6.6 Developing background research	130
	6.7 Forum: the uses of debate	135
SECTION III	GENERAL ISSUES	141
	7 The literature curriculum	141
	7.0 Introduction	141
	7.1 Some criteria for text selection	141
	7.2 Simplification and graded readers	146
	7.3 Cross-cultural factors	153
	7.4 Literatures in English	156
	7.5 Issues in the testing of literature	159
	7.6 Conclusions and a note about class size	174
	8 Theories of reading	176
	8.0 Introduction	176
	8.1 Practical criticism and liberal humanism	179
	8.2 Narrative models	182
	8.3 The death of the author	183
	8.4 Reading as a woman	186
	8.5 Reading in a post-colonial situation	189
	8.6 Summary and future developments	195
	Select bibliography on literature and language teaching	196