

CONTENTS

Introduction	7
--------------------	---

Approaches to the History of International Scientific Congresses. Opportunities and Problems	11
(Ulrike Thoms)

Soviet Scientists (Members of Science Societies) at International Scientific Meetings in the 1920s: Political and Ideological Aspects	29
(Elena Sinelnikova)

On Soviet Soil. Curtis Marbut's Encounter with Rural Russia in the Stalinist Transformation	49
(Jan Arend)

The Czech Geographer Jiří Viktor Daneš and His Presence at the Eighth International Geographic Congress in Washington in 1904. A Paper on the Everydayness of a Czech Scientist on His Travels	77
(Petra Tomšová)

"One Cannot Always Just Sit at a Convention, We Are Human, after All ..." Student and Professors of the Czech Technical University at Conferences and in the Social Environment of International Conventions in 1918–1938	101
(Kamila Mádrová)

The Presence of Czech Astronomers at International Conferences, 1918–1938	123
(Petra Hyklová)

"The Preparatory Organisational Work Developed Quite Satisfactorily..." Bratislava in the 1930s and International Lawyers' Conventions	145
(Katarína Zavacká)

When Science Does Not Conquer Boundaries ... Conferences of the Technical Sciences at the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences in the 1950s and 1960s – Home vs. Abroad	165
(Milena Josefovičová)

When a Scientist Went to Fight: Czechoslovak “Socialist Science Emissaries” at International Congresses	187
(Michaela Kůželová)

Doing One’s Laundry in a Hotel Room. The Everydayness of Josef Charvát and Ivan Málek at Congresses and Scientific Conventions in Western Countries in the 1960s	207
(Martin Franc)

RILEM 1961 – The First Post-war Convention of the International Union of Laboratories and Experts in Construction Materials, Systems and Structures in Socialist Bloc Countries.	229
(Věra Dvořáčková)

Authors	246
Resources	247
Literature	248
Name Index	268
Summary	274