Contents

Introduction by S. L. Tsohatzidis 1

Part One: On the content of prototype categories: questions of word meaning 15

1 A survey of category types in natural language 17
Cecil H. Brown

2 Possible verbs and the structure of events 48
William Croft

3 Prototypical considerations on modal meanings 74
Steven Cushing

4 Belief ascription, metaphor, and intensional identification 91
Afzal Ballim, Yorick Wilks, John Barnden

5 Negated beliefs and non-monotonic reasoning 132
Ryszard Zuber

6 Lexical hierarchies and Ojibwa noun derivation 151
Richard A. Rhodes

7 Some English terms of insult invoking sex organs: evidence of a pragmatic driver for semantics 159
Keith Allan

8 The lexicographical treatment of prototypical polysemy 195
Dirk Geeraerts

Part Two: On the content of prototype categories: further questions 211

9 Settings, participants, and grammatical relations 213
Ronald W. Langacker

10 On the semantics of compounds and genitives in English 239
Paul Kay and Karl Zimmer

11 A notional approach to the French verbal adjective 247
Roger McLure and Paul Reed

12 Prototypical uses of grammatical resources in the expression of linguistic action 267
René Dirven

13 Toward a theory of syntactic prototypes 285
Margaret E. Winters

14 Accent in prototypical wh questions 307
Dwight Bolinger

15 Prototypical manners of linguistic action 315
Anne-Marie Diller

16 Where partonomies and taxonomies meet 334
Barbara Tversky

Part Three: On the context of prototype methods: questions of word meaning 345

17 'Prototypes save': on the uses and abuses of the notion of 'prototype' in linguistics and related fields 347
Anna Wierzbicka

18 Prototype theory and its implications for lexical analysis 368
Adrienne Lehrer

19 Prototype theory and lexical semantics 382
D. A. Cruse

20 Representation, prototypes, and centrality 403
Claude Vandeloise

21 A few untruths about 'lie' 438
S. L. Tsohatzidis

Part Four: On the context of prototype methods: further questions 447

22 On 'folk' and 'scientific' linguistic beliefs 449
Roy Harris

23 Gestures during discourse: the contextual structuring of thought 465
Nancy L. Dray and David McNeill

24 Why words have to be vague 488
Roger McLure

25 Schemas, prototypes, and models: in search of the unity of the sign 521
John R. Taylor

26 Psychologistic semantics, robust vagueness, and the philosophy of language 535
Terence Horgan

Bibliography 558

Index 582