

Contents

Foreword to the Chinese edition	vii
Preface to the Chinese edition	ix
PART 1
Shi and fu poetry	1
1 The three sources of Chinese poetry and ballads	3
2 The rise and fall of shi and fu poetry	26
3 The peak of poetry: Tang poems	46
4 The new direction of Song Dynasty poetry and the flourishing of poetry studies	64
5 The ebb tide of poetry: the Yuan, Ming and Qing Dynasties	78
6 The structure and style of shi and fu poetry	86
Interim summary	99
PART 2
Ci poems and qu verses	103
7 The rise and evolution of ci poetry	105
8 Qu verses of the Yuan Dynasty	126
9 Chuanqi Opera in the Ming and Qing Dynasties	143
10 The structure and style of ci and qu	148
Interim summary	156

PART 3

The novel

	159
11 The concept of the novel and its debut	161
12 The impetus behind the novel	174
13 Full-length zhanghuiti novel of Ming and Qing Dynasties	185
14 The structure and style of the novel	197
Interim summary	200

PART 4

Essays

	201
15 The origin and evolution of the essay	203
16 The structure and style of writings	225
Interim summary	228
Further discussion	229
Afterword to the first Chinese edition	231
Afterword to the second Chinese edition	233
Index	235