

Contents

Authors' Note	vii
11. Late State Socialism: Consolidation, Legitimization, and Reform from Above	1
11.1 The raison d'état of "really existing socialism"	1
11.2 National communism: Liberalization or neo-Stalinism?	10
11.3 The dilemmas of perestroika reformism	28
12. Political Thought in Exile	42
12.1 Ideological, generational, and institutional cleavages	42
12.2 The intellectual battle with communism	57
13. Dissidents and Opposition Movements	77
13.1 The emergence of dissident discourses and subcultures	77
13.2 Dialogue and empowerment	94
13.3 The identity politics of the dissidents	118
13.4 Toward a self-limiting revolution	150
PART III. FAREWELL TO MODERNITY? THINKING POLITICS AFTER THE "END OF HISTORY"	177
14. Velvet Revolutions and the Thorny Paths of Transition	181
14.1 Visions of democratic transformation	181
14.2 The ambiguities of the "liberal consensus"	192
14.3 Coming to terms with the past	213
14.4 Church, religion, and democracy	230
15. "Rebuilding the Boat in the Open Sea"	240
15.1 The dilemmas of state-building and constitutional reforms	240
15.2 The specter of ethnopopulism	250
15.3 Modes of coexistence	260
16. In Search of a New Ideology	277
16.1 The "culture wars" of the 2000s	277
16.2 Radicalizing democracy	289
16.3 Centers and peripheries	310
Select Bibliography	329
Index	381