My Mother, Frank Jackson, and Paul Rayment read a draft of the introduction and provided useful comments and suggestions. John Bigelow and Howard Robinson furnished important historical information. Walter Dinges and Michael Smith gave us guidance about the overall direction of the work. David Chalmers did all these things, and in addition gave good advice about essay selection. We are grateful to all of them. We would also like to thank those authors and publishers who let us reprint the essays collected here and those authors who wrote new essays for the volume: David Chalmers, Bent Høffte, Philip Beane, and Robert Van Gulck. We are grateful also to Judy Feldmann, Josice Lawrence-Hurt, and Terri Jones of The MIT Press. Finally, further thanks to Frank Jackson for the teamwork, and of course for his splendid creation, Mary.
