

Contents

Contributors xi

Introduction 1

Oonagh Corrigan, John McMillan, and Charles Weijer

- 1 Informed consent in medical research – a procedure stretched beyond breaking point? 11
Søren Holm and Søren Madsen
- 2 Trust and exploitation in clinical research 25
Paul B. Miller and Charles Weijer
- 3 Consent and private liability in clinical research 39
Paul B. Miller and Josephine Johnston
- 4 The decision to decline to enrol in a clinical trial: a blind spot in the literature on decision-making for research participation 57
Clare Snowdon, Diana Elbourne, and Jo Garcia
- 5 Beyond a rebarbative commitment to consent 79
Kathleen Liddell
- 6 The normative status of the requirement to gain an informed consent in clinical trials: comprehension, obligations, and empirical evidence 99
Angus Dawson
- 7 Is there an obligation to participate in medical research? 115
Stephen John
- 8 Consenting older adults: research as a virtuous relationship 133
Julian C. Hughes, Erica Haimes, Lorraine Summerville, Karen Davies, Joanna Collerton, and Thomas B.L. Kirkwood
- 9 Towards supported decision-making in biomedical research with cognitively vulnerable adults 151
Philip Bielby
- 10 Is consent sufficient? A case study of qualitative research with men with intellectual disabilities 171
Margaret Ponder, Helen Statham, Nina Hallowell, and Martin Richards
- 11 Consent to genetic testing: a family affair? 185
Nina Hallowell

12 Cultural authority of informed consent: indigenous participation in biobanking and salmon genomics focus groups 199

Michael Burgess and James Tansey

Consent and beyond: some conclusions 213

Kathleen Liddell and Martin Richards

Index 229