

CONTENTS

Publisher's Note	v
Introduction	ix
I 1842-1846 ". . . the Hens lay finely . . ."	i
II 1847-1848 "I am really at Mt Holyoke . . ."	13
III 1849-1850 "Amherst is alive with fun this winter . . ."	27
IV 1851-1854 ". . . we do not have much poetry, father having made up his mind that its pretty much all real life ."	43
V 1855-1857 "To live, and die, and mount again in triumphant body . . . is no schoolboy's theme!"	129
VI 1858-1861 "Much has occurred . . . so much - that I stagger as I write, in its sharp remembrance."	139
VII 1862-1865 "Perhaps you smile at me. I could not stop for that - My Business is Circumference."	165

VIII	1866-1869
		"A Letter always feels to me like immortality because it is the mind alone without corporeal friend."	189
IX	1870-1874
		"I find ecstasy in living — the mere sense of living is joy enough."	203
X	1875-1879
		"Nature is a Haunted House — but Art — a House that tries to be haunted."	225
XI	1880-1883
		"I hesitate which word to take, as I can take but few and each must be the chiefest . . ."	257
XII	1884-1886
		". . . a Letter is a joy of Earth — it is denied the Gods."	297
		Appendix: Biographical Sketches of Recipients of Letters and of Persons Mentioned in Them	333
		Index	355