

Contents

Introduction	8	VI Books for Everybody	168
I Books for Missionaries	14	15th century: the emergence of the Book of Hours as a devotional book for ordinary households as well as the aristocracy
7th–9th centuries: the written word as an essential tool for the early missionaries of Britain and Ireland, who produced books of extraordinary sophistication		VII Books for Priests	200
II Books for Emperors	42	13th–16th centuries: the Bibles, Missals, Breviaries, Psalters and other service books and handbooks that sustained the life of the Church
8th–11th centuries: books as treasure and as luxurious objects of display and diplomatic gifts in the courts of Charlemagne and his successors		VIII Books for Collectors	232
III Books for Monks	74	15th–16th centuries: the revival of classical learning and the creation of de luxe manuscripts for wealthy humanist patrons
12th century: the golden age of the monastic book, when monks in their scriptoria produced manuscripts for their libraries		Bibliography	258
IV Books for Students	108	Index of Manuscripts	264
13th century: the rise of the universities and the emergence of a professional book trade to meet the new need for textbooks		General Index	267
V Books for Aristocrats	142
14th century: the Age of Chivalry – a wealthy and newly literate aristocracy generating a new type of book, the secular romance			