

Table of contents

Kersti Börjars, David Denison &amp; Alan Scott
Introduction	VII
Kersti Börjars, David Denison &amp; Alan Scott
Dealing with postmodified possessors in early English: Split and group genitives	1
Cynthia L. Allen
Variation in the form and function of the possessive morpheme in Late Middle and Early Modern English	35
Teo Juvonen
The great regression: Genitive variability in Late Modern English news texts	59
Benedikt Szmrecsanyi
Nominal categories and the expression of possession: A cross-linguistic study of probabilistic tendencies and categorical constraints	89
Catherine O'Connor, Joan Maling &amp; Barbora Skarabela
Expression of possession in English: The significance of the right edge	123
Kersti Börjars, David Denison, Grzegorz Krajewski &amp; Alan Scott
A cognitive analysis of John's hat	149
Richard Hudson
The oblique genitive in English	177
John Payne
The marker of the English "Group Genitive" is a special clitic, not an inflection	193
Stephen R. Anderson
Two prenominal possessors in West Flemish	219
Liliane Haegeman
A Mozart sonata and the Palme murder : The structure and uses of proper-name compounds in Swedish	253
Maria Koptjevskaja-Tamm
Possessive clitics and ezafe in Urdu	291
Tina Bögel &amp; Miriam Butt
References	323
Index	339