

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
Foreword by Peter Rosenbaum	ix
PART 1: BACKGROUND: KEY ISSUES IN PLANNING THERAPY FOR PEOPLE WITH CEREBRAL PALSY
1. Introduction to the clinical reasoning approach of the book Christine Imms, Karen J Dodd and Nicholas F Taylor	1
2. What is cerebral palsy? Christine Imms and Karen J Dodd	7
3. Understanding the family's perspective: parenting a child with cerebral palsy Helen Bourke-Taylor	31
4. Overview of therapy Karen Dodd, Christine Imms and Nicholas F Taylor	40
PART 2: THE PRESCHOOL YEARS
In the Beginning
5. The infant with complex needs Sarah Foley and Susan Greaves	73
Being Two
6. Early steps Karen J Dodd and Susan Greaves	92

Contents

7. Modified constraint-induced therapy for young children	114
Margaret Wallen and Christine Imms
Getting Ready for School
8. Goal-directed training of activity performance	130
Brian Hoare and Christine Imms
9. The role of botulinum toxin A injections in the lower extremity	146
Pam Thomason and Kerr Graham
PART 3: THE SCHOOL YEARS
Getting Things Straight
10. Physiotherapy following single event multilevel surgery (SEMLS)	159
Adrienne Harvey
11. Occupational therapy following upper extremity surgery	177
Josie Duncan
Transition to Secondary School
12. Navigating school-based needs and technological supports for secondary school	191
Margaret Mayston
Doing it Yourself
13. Strength training for adolescents	209
Nicholas F Taylor and Karen J Dodd
PART 4: ADULTHOOD
Getting Out There
14. Transitions to adulthood	230
Mary Law and Debra Stewart
Community Access
15. The young adult with complex disability	245
Barbara Scoullar and Christine Imms
Staying Healthy
16. The adult years	260
Karen J Dodd, Nicholas F Taylor and Christine Imms
Appendix: Assessment of the individual with cerebral palsy	282
Index	305